michael cunningham s luminous novel begins with a vision it s november 2004 barrett meeks having lost love yet again is walking through central park when he is inspired to look up at the sky there he sees a pale translucent light that seems to regard him in a distinctly godlike way barrett doesn't believe in visions or in god but he can't deny what he's seen at the same time in the not quite gentrified bushwick neighbourhood of brooklyn tyler barrett's older brother a struggling musician is trying and failing to write a song for beth his wife to be who is seriously ill tyler is determined to write a wedding song that will be not merely a sentimental ballad but an enduring expression of love barrett haunted by the light turns unexpectedly to religion tyler grows increasingly convinced that only drugs can release his creative powers beth tries to face mortality with as much courage as she can summon cunningham follows the meeks brothers as each turns down a different path in his search for transcendence in subtle lucid prose he demonstrates a profound empathy for his conflicted characters and a singular understanding of what lies at the depth of the human soul
