nearly 16 of india s population or over 100 million people are untouchables most of them despite decades of government efforts to improve their economic and social position remain desperately poor illiterate subject to brutal discrimination and economic exploitation and with no prospect for improvement of their condition this is the autobiography first published in 1979 of muli a 40 year old untouchable of the bauri caste living in the indian state of orissa as told to an american anthropologist muli is a narrator who combines rich descriptions of daily life with perceptive observations of his social surroundings he describes with absorbing detail what it is like to be at the bottom of indian life and what happens when an untouchable attempts to break out of his accepted role more a continent than a county india is an overload for the senses from the himalayan peaks of sikkim to the tropical backwaters of kerala the desert forts of rajasthan to the mangroves of west bengal india s breathtaking diversity of landscapes is matched only by its range of cultures cuisines religions and languages the new full colour rough guide to india gives you the lowdown on this beguiling country whether you want to hang out in hyper modern cities or explore thousand year old temples track tigers through the forest or take part in age old festivals get a taste of the raj or watch a your time with the rough guide to india now available in epub format in the 1920s revolution war and imperialist aggression brought chaos to china many of the dramatic events associated with this upheaval took place in or near china s cities bound together by rail telegraph and a shared urban mentality cities like guangzhou shanghai and beijing formed an arena in which the great issues of the day the quest for social and civil peace the defense of popular and national sovereignty and the search for a distinctively modern chinese society were debated and fought over people were drawn into this conflicts because they knew that the passage of armies the marching of protesters the pontificating of intellectual and the opening and closing of factories could change their lives david strand offers a penetrating view of the old walled capital of beijing during these years by examining how the residents coped with the changes wrought by itinerant soldiers and politicians and by the accelerating movement of ideas capital and technology by looking at the political experiences of ordinary citizens including rickshaw pullers policemen trade unionists and buddhist monks strand provides fascinating insights into how deeply these forces were felt the resulting portrait of early twentieth century chinese urban society stresses the growing political sophistication of ordinary people educated by mass movements group politics and participation in a shared urban culture that mixed opera and demonstrations newspaper reading and teahouse socializing surprisingly in the course of absorbing new ways of living working and doing politics much of the old society was preserved everything seemed to change and yet little of value was discarded through tumultuous times beijing rose from a base of local and popular politics to form a bridge linking a traditional world of guilds and gentry elites with the contemporary world of corporatism and cadres the lure of golden sands world s smokers over 350 million now live in china and they account for 25 percent of worldwide smoking related deaths this book examines the deep roots of china s contemporary cigarette culture and smoking epidemic and provides one of the first comprehensive histories of chinese consumption in global and comparative perspective publisher s description by looking at the activities of taoist clerics in peking this book explores the workings of religion as a profession in one chinese city during a period of dramatic modernization the author focuses on ordinary religious professionals most of whom remained obscure temple employees although almost forgotten they were all major actors in urban religious and cultural life the clerics at the heart of this study spent their time training disciples practicing and teaching self cultivation performing rituals and managing temples vincent goossaert shows that these taoists were neither the socially despised illiterates dismissed in so many studies nor otherworldly ascetics but active participants in the religious economy of the city in exploring exactly what their crucial role was he addresses the day to day life of modern chinese religion from the perspective of ordinary religious specialists this approach highlights the social processes institutions and networks that transmit religious knowledge and mediate between prestigious religious traditions and the people in the street in modern chinese religion the taoists are such key actors without them taoist ritual and taoist self cultivation are just empty words and advertisements as well as paintings to present readers with the compelling story of a city and its artists tobie meyer fong author of what remains coming to terms with civil war in 19th century china and building culture in early qing yangzhou rich in findings forensic in visual analysis and not least elegantly crafted wue s book on painting printing and the social worlds of art in late qing shanghai is an exemplary contribution a must read volume shane mccausland author of zhao mengfu calligraphy and painting for khubilai s china this work focuses on urban governance in the developing world its aim being to bring a holistic perspective to the debate on urban governance in asia and around the globe it has been divided into three sections the first section is on rural interventions as they influence urbanization and its problems solutions the second focuses on urban governance infrastructure programs service delivery reforms and their evaluation the third and final section focuses on urbanization and the environment in the first section we present evaluations of india s rural programs including the mahatma gandhi national rural employment guarantee act mgnrega and of india s total sanitation campaign this section covers the transition from rural to urban areas and highlights coping mechanisms in urban areas and policy implications for urban governance from the viewpoint of rural migrants the section on urban governance infrastructure and service delivery is the most in depth and consists of papers that present state of the art research on many aspects of infrastructure such as cost and time overruns risks and their mitigation assessments of the metro rail and services such as solid waste management the focus of the final section is on urbanization and the environment here we examine land use change in india the relationship between urban form and residential energy use in bandung indonesia and end by depicting a cautiously optimistic view of asia s urbanization environment nexus thoroughly revised and revamped with expanded coverage
