and reduce oral health health and psychosocial inequities in addition this material will include various methods used for their implementation and evaluation at the outset the reader will be offered a working definition of inclusion oral health which will be modelled on the work of luchenski et al 1 the interventions described are theoretically underpinned by a pluralistic definition of evidence based practice 2 and the radical discourse of health promotion as postulated by laverack and labonte 3 and others 4 5 this special issue will consist of eight papers including an introduction the first three papers will examine the various sources of evidence used to transform top down into bottom up community based interventions for people experiencing homelessness people in custody and for families residing in areas of high social deprivation the final four papers will report on the implementation and evaluation of social or community based interventions this collection of research papers will highlight the importance of focusing on prevention and the adoption of a common risk factor agenda to tackle oral health health and psychosocial inequities felt by those most excluded in our societies social capital is a key factor that concerns the ability of people to cooperate for common goals what we have learned over the past decades from organizational experiences in developing countries and countries in transition is that physical and human capital accumulation by itself is not sufficient to induce development investments in physical capital infrastructure and equipment and human capital skills development are necessary conditions but they are far from sufficient they need to be complemented with the development of social capital stiglitz 1998 this learning guide for trainers focuses on empowering farmers through the creation of social capital recognizing the fundamental role that social capital plays for healthy and sustainable organizations encouraging farmers challenges these new unions face in practice and a firsthand account of the ambitious occasionally contentious and ultimately successful international solidarity project that helped to spark a new feminist labor movement in the early 1990s as part of a larger wave of union reform efforts in japan women began creating their own women only labor unions to confront long standing gender inequality in the workplace and in traditional enterprise unions these new unions soon discovered that the demand for individual assistance and help at the bargaining table dramatically exceeded the rate at which the unions could recruit and train members to meet that demand within just a few years women only unions were proving to be both the most effective option women had for addressing problems on the job and in serious danger of dying out because of their inability to grow their organizational capacity zacharias walsh met up with japanese women s unions at a critical moment in their struggle to survive recognizing the benefits of a cross national dialogue they teamed up to host a multiyear international exchange project that brought together u s and japanese activists and scholars to investigate the links between organizational structure and the day to day problems nontraditional unions face and to develop japan specific participatory labor education as a way to organize and empower new generations of members they also gained valuable insights into the fine art of building and maintaining the kinds of collaborative cross border relationships that are essential to today s
