Ministry of Defence main estimates 2007-08 2007-07-10 the main supply estimates are the means by which the government requests resources from parliament to meet its expenditure plans for the coming financial year setting out a resource based estimate for each department and for public service pension schemes the committee's report focuses on the estimates for the ministry of defence mod for 2007 08 hcp 438 session 2006 07 isbn 9780102944969 it identifies no issues which require to be debated by the house of commons before the house is asked to agree to the main estimates but the report highlights the fact that mod's request for resources of 33.7 billion in the main estimates does not include the expected costs of military operations in iraq and afghanistan and so greatly underestimates the total expected cost of the mod's activities in 2007 08 it argues that the mod should include estimated costs of military operations in its main estimates instead of waiting for the supplementary estimates as it does at present as it is unacceptable that the mod is incurring costs on military operations without parliamentary approval and without even providing parliament with an outline of the anticipated costs

Report on the 2007-08 Budget Estimates 2007 total factor productivity tfp is a variable which accounts for effects in total output not caused by traditionally measured inputs of labour and capital if all inputs are accounted for then total factor productivity can be taken as a measure of an economy's long term technological change or technological dynamism scale of economies and efficiency tfp is regarded as the more accurate productivity measure than the partial productivity measure the broader the coverage of resources the better is the productivity measure the best measure is one that compares output with the combined use of all resources chandel 2007 tfp is the change in output relative to a weighted combination of all inputs where the weights are factor shares some authors also define tfp as contribution of non traditional inputs to output for example non inputs were technology irrigation infrastructure managerial skills and so on the calculated tfp is decomposed in to a scale of economies b technical change and c residual or efficiency or management to know the contribution of non conventional inputs to the output growth there are different approaches for estimation of tfp such as production function approach growth accounting approach and non parametric approach world scenariocelli et al 2003 conducted a study on total factor productivity growth in agriculture a malmquist index analysis of 93 countries the results shown that asia as a region posted the highest tfp growth of 2.9 percent followed by north america consisting of usa and canada australasia europe africa and south america south america has posted the lowest growth rate of 0.6 per cent followed by africa with 1.3 per cent growth in tfp a surprising result is that over the period 1980 2000 the results on continent level information for six regions revealed that the largest difference occurs for south and central america where the average tfp growth measure increases from 0.6 percent to 1.5 per cent per annum country scenariochand et al 2011 estimated average annual tfp growth for the major crops cultivated in india among cereals wheat experienced the highest growth in tfp index during the three decades from 1975 to 2005 among pulses the tfp growth was estimated to be 0.5 per cent for moong followed by gram 0.2 per cent tfp for arhar and urad crops displayed a decline over the past three decades the tfp is a useful indicator of changes in long term productivity the tfp growth tfpg in the oilseed sector varied in the range 0.7 0.8 per cent per annum an attempt was made to analyze the tfp of ragi in karnataka the results shown that tfp for ragi increased from 1.17 during 1999 to 1.81 in 2013 the tfp fell to 0.61 in 2011 and 0.67 in 2008 due to drought during that period the highest tfp index was observed in 2007 08 2.18 the average tfp index for 15 years was 1.12 the output index of ragi increased from 1.40 in 1999 to 1.79 in 2013 the average input index of ragi was 1.14 for fifteen years suresh k 2013 conducted a study on economic impact of public sector agricultural research in ragi and redgram in karnataka the results revealed that the total factor productivity index of redgram grew at the rate of 3.31 per cent per annum and that of ragi grew at 4.75 per cent per annum thus public research significantly contributed to tfp growth in ragi conclusion total factor productivity can be estimated by different approaches in growth accounting approach the tornqvist thiel index is commonly used which is based on translog production function the tfp decomposition analysis helps to identify factors which influence the total factor productivity growth the results of the decomposition analysis indicate which variable contribute to growth in productivity this will enable policy makers to suggest plan and programmes to achieve total factor productivity growth

Budget Estimates 2007/08 2009 this book gives a practical applications oriented account of the latest techniques for estimating and analyzing large nonlinear macroeconomic models ray fair demonstrates the application of these techniques in a detailed presentation of several actual models including his united states model his multicountry model sargent s classical macroeconomic model autoregressive and vector autoregressive models and a small twelve equation linear structural model he devotes a good deal of attention to the difficult and often neglected problem of moving from theoretical to econometric models in addition he provides an extensive discussion of optimal control techniques and methods for estimating and analyzing rational expectations models a computer program that handles all the techniques in the book is available from the author making it possible to use the techniques with little additional programming the book presents the logic of this program a smaller program for personal microcomputers for analysis of fair s united states model is available from urban systems research engineering inc anyone wanting to learn how to use large macroeconomic models including researchers graduate students economic forecasters and people in business and government both in the united states and abroad will find this an essential guidebook
