this book argues that abbatial authority was fundamental to monastic historical writing in the period c 500 1500 writing history was a collaborative enterprise integral to the life and identity of medieval monastic communities but it was not an activity for which time and resources were set aside routinely each act of historiographical production constituted an extraordinary event one for which singular provision had to be made workers and materials assigned time carved out from the monastic routine and licence granted this allocation of human and material resources was the responsibility and prerogative of the monastic superior drawing on a wide and diverse range of primary evidence gathered from across the medieval latin west this book is the first to investigate systematically how and why abbots and abbesses exercised their official authority and resources to lay the foundations on which their communities historiographical traditions were built by themselves and others it showcases them as prolific authors patrons commissioners project managers and facilitators of historical narratives who not only regularly put pen to parchment personally but also and perhaps more importantly enabled others inside and outside their communities by granting them the resources and licence to write revealing the intrinsic relationship between abbatial authority and the writing of history in the middle ages with unprecedented clarity benjamin pohl urges us to revisit and revise our understanding of monastic historiography its processes and its protagonists in ways that require some radical rethinking of the medieval historian s craft in communal and institutional contexts in this original and thought provoking research handbook an international and interdisciplinary group of scholars artists lawyers judges and writers offer a range of perspectives on rethinking law by means of literary concepts presenting a comprehensive introduction to jurisliterary themes it destabilises the traditional hierarchy that places law before literature and exposes the literary nature of the legal contributing to the current lively discussion of collaboration in french letters this collection raises fundamental questions about the limits and definition of authorship in the context of the nineteenth century s explosion of collaborative ventures while the model of the stable single author that prevailed during the romantic period dominates the beginning of the century the authority of the speaking subject is increasingly in crisis through the century s political and social upheavals chapters consider the breakdown of authorial presence across different constructions of authorship including the numerous cenacles of the romantic period collaborative ventures in poetry through the practice of the tombeaux and as seen in the album Zutique the interplay of text and image through illustrations for literary works the collective ventures of literary journals and multi author prose works by authors such as the Goncourt brothers and Erckmann Chatrion interdisciplinary in scope these essays form a cohesive investigation of collaboration that extends beyond literature to include journalism and the relationships and tensions between literature and the arts the volume will interest scholars of nineteenth century French literature and more generally any scholar interested in what is at stake in redefining the role of the French author this book with invaluable contributions of Professor Franz Wotawa in chapters 5 and 7 presents the potential use and implementation of intelligent techniques in decision making processes involved in organizations and companies it provides a thorough analysis of decisions reviewing the classical decision theory and describing usual methods for modeling the decision process it describes the chronological evolution of decision support systems DSS from early management information systems until the appearance of intelligent decision support systems IDSS it explains the most commonly used intelligent techniques both data driven and model driven and illustrates the use of knowledge models in decision support through case studies the author pays special attention to the whole data science process which provides intelligent data driven models in IDSS the book describes main uncertainty models used in artificial intelligence to model inexactness covers recommender systems and reviews available development tools for inducing data driven models for using model driven methods and for aiding the development of intelligent decision support systems the third edition of this authoritative and comprehensive handbook is the definitive work on the current state of the art of biometric presentation attack detection PAD also known as biometric anti spoofing building on the success of the previous editions this thoroughly updated third edition has been considerably revised to provide even greater coverage of PAD methods spanning biometrics systems based on face fingerprint iris voice vein and signature recognition new material is also included on major PAD competitions important databases for research and on the impact of recent international legislation valuable insights are supplied by a selection of leading experts in the field complete with results from reproducible research supported by source code and further information available at an associated website topics and features reviews the latest developments in PAD for fingerprint biometrics covering recent technologies like vision transformers and review of competition series examines methods for PAD in iris recognition systems the use of pupil size measurement or multiple spectra for this purpose discusses advancements in PAD methods for face recognition based biometrics such as recent progress on detection of 3D facial masks in male rituals that had previously gone unseen female seclusion and the enforcement of taboos were crucial elements of the ritual process forms of presence in their own right contributors here provide detailed accounts of the different kinds of female presence in various papua new guinea male rituals when these are restored to the picture the rituals can no longer be interpreted merely as an institution for reproducing male domination but must also be understood as a moment when the whole system of relations binding a male person to his kin is reorganized by dealing with the participation of women a totally neglected dimension of male rituals is added to our understanding in the early nineteenth century london publishers dominated the transatlantic book trade no one felt this more keenly than authors from ireland scotland and the united states who struggled to establish their own national literary traditions while publishing in the english metropolis authors such as maria edgeworth sydney owenson walter scott washington irving and james fenimore cooper devised a range of strategies to transcend the national rivalries of the literary field by writing prefaces and footnotes addressed to a foreign audience revising texts specifically for london markets and celebrating national particularity provincial authors appealed to english readers with idealistic stories of cross cultural communion from within the messy and uneven marketplace for books joseph rezek argues provincial authors sought to exalt and purify literary exchange in so doing they helped shape the romantic era belief that literature inhabits an autonomous sphere in society london and the making of provincial literature tells an ambitious story about the mutual entanglement of the history of books and the history of aesthetics in the first three decades of the nineteenth century situated between local literary scenes and a distant cultural capital enterprising provincial authors and publishers worked to maximize success in london and to burnish their reputations and build their industry at home examining the production of books and the circulation of material texts between london and the provincial centers of dublin edinburgh and philadelphia rezek claims that the publishing vortex of london inspired a dynamic array of economic and aesthetic practices that shaped an era in literary history

Literature 1972, Part 1 2013-11-11 the phenomenon of celebrity burst upon the world scene about a century ago as movies and modern media brought exceptional larger than life personalities before the masses during the same era modernist authors were creating works that defined high culture in our society and set aesthetics apart from the middle and low brow culture in which celebrity supposedly resides to challenge this ingrained dichotomy between modernism and celebrity jonathan goldman offers a provocative new reading of early twentieth century culture and the formal experiments that constitute modernist literature s unmistakable legacy he argues that the literary innovations of the modernists are indeed best understood as a participant in the popular phenomenon of celebrity presenting a persuasive argument as well as a chronicle of modernism s and celebrity s shared history modernism is the literature of celebrity begins by unraveling the uncanny syncretism between oscar wilde s writings and his public life goldman explains that wilde in shaping his instantly identifiable public image provided a model for both literary and celebrity cultures in the decades that followed in subsequent chapters goldman traces this lineage through two luminaries of the modernist canon james joyce and gertrude stein before turning to the cinema of mega star charlie chaplin he investigates how celebrity and modernism intertwine in the work of two less obvious modernist subjects jean rhys and john dos passos turning previous criticism on its head goldman demonstrates that the authorial self fashioning particular to modernism and generated by modernist technique helps create celebrity as we now know it

dominated the transatlantic book trade no one felt this more keenly than authors from ireland scotland and the united states who struggled to establish their own national literary traditions while publishing in the english metropolis authors such as maria edgeworth sydney owenson walter scott washington irving and james fenimore cooper devised a range of strategies to transcend the national rivalries of the literary field by writing prefaces and footnotes addressed to a foreign audience revising texts specifically for london markets and celebrating national particularity provincial authors appealed to english readers with idealistic stories of cross cultural communion from within the messy and uneven marketplace for books joseph rezek argues provincial authors sought to exalt and purify literary exchange in so doing they helped shape the romantic era belief that literature inhabits an autonomous sphere in society london and the making of provincial literature tells an ambitious story about the mutual entanglement of the history of books and the history of aesthetics in the first three decades of the nineteenth century situated between local literary scenes and a distant cultural capital enterprising provincial authors and publishers worked to maximize success in london and to burnish their reputations and build their industry at home examining the production of books and the circulation of material texts between london and the provincial centers of dublin edinburgh and philadelphia rezek claims that the publishing vortex of london inspired a dynamic array of economic and aesthetic practices that shaped an era in literary history
