bringing spiritual experience into the domain of biblical hermeneutics this book will certainly stimulate current debates within this field among both pentecostals and christians of other traditions the author also applies a pentecostal hermeneutical methodology to paul s teaching on tongues and prophecy in 1 corinthians 12 14

opening possibilities to a pentecostal pneumatology that tends instead to focus on the lukan narrative paul s texts are reconsidered not as doctrinal or situational documents but as dynamic communication within a living community this is an examination of the background to the gift of tongues in the light of old testament prophecy in this book hui firstly examines the background to the gifts of tongues and prophecy with a comprehensive assessment of the historical evidence both primary and secondary finding that tongues is a uniquely christian phenomenon hui then demonstrates that new testament prophecy is best considered as a direct extension of old testament prophecy hui moves on to define and describe the functions of both tongues and prophecy in the new testament which subsequently provides a clear base from which to seek a coherent understanding of the context and intent of paul s regulations in 1 cor 14 26 40 attention is then focused on the socio religious context of the known new testament churches to determine if these regulations are applicable in non corinthian congregations this ties in with a wider debate in pauline scholarship surrounding whether paul s intent was for corinthians to be only addressed to the church at corinth or whether he intended it to have a secondary audience also finally hui draws the conclusion that paul s regulations in 1 corinthians are aptly applicable in all known new testament churches and that the corinthian situation is not unique the natural inference is thereby that these regulations may be considered further in application to christian churches in a contemporary setting the scenes of babel and pentecost the original confusion of tongues and their redemption through translation haunt german romanticism and idealism this book begins by retracing the ways in which the task of translation so crucial to romantic writing is repeatedly tied to prophecy not in the sense of telling future events but in the sense of speaking in the place of another most often unbeknownst to the speaker herself in prophetic speech the confusion of tongues repeats each time anew as language takes place unpredictably in more than one voice and more than one tongue at once mendicino argues that the relation between translation and prophecy drawn by german romantic writers fundamentally changes the way we must approach this so called age of translation whereas major studies of the period have taken as their point of departure the opposition of the familiar and the foreign mendicino suggests that romantic writing provokes the questions how could one read a language that is not one and what would such a polyvocal polyglot language have to say about philology both for the romantics whose translation projects are most intimately related to their philological preoccupations and for us in prophecies of language these questions are pursued through readings of major texts by g w f hegel wilhelm von humboldt friedrich schlegel and friedrich h lderlin these readings show how when one questions the presupposition of works composed by individual authors in one tongue these texts disclose more than a monoglot reading yields namely the plus of their linguistic plurality from such a surplus each chapter goes on to advocate for a philology that in and through an inclination toward language takes neither its unity nor its structure for granted but allows itself to be most profoundly affected addressed and afflicted by it

Regulations Concerning Tongues and Prophecy in 1 Corinthians 14.26-40

the biblical gift of speaking in tongues is the supernatural gift from god of speaking in a known foreign language to unbelievers without any previous knowledge or training in that language and what is spoken in that foreign language is the gospel of jesus christ the main purpose is in order that christ and him crucified would be preached to all nations in a language that the hearer would understand yet today many wolves in sheep clothing have perverted what the true gift of speaking in tongues really is and have replaced it with all sorts of false doctrines this bible study teaches verse by verse on this topic teaching what the bible says as compared to what the heretics of today have to say who are deceiving christians by telling them to pray in ecstatic utterance that was once only associated with demonic possession and as you will see a very dangerous doctrine is being spewed from the tongues of these false prophets readers reviews of this little book by christians who are open to the present day operation of the spiritual gifts speak for themselves more than a bible study the gift of tongues gives practical and personal guidance answering questions that too often go unasked the author covers various views on the gift of tongues and briefly addresses the cessation theory topics include the purposes of tongues use of tongues in church and in private the nature and value of tongues to the church and to the individual and how to revive a church in which the gifts have dwindled quotes is it any wonder that the principalities of darkness are rising up and overpowering the floundering church of north america our mighty weapons in christ have been cast aside for the rocks and clubs of mere human ability natural instead of supernatural but predictable and logical and conveniently taught in seminary christianity is nothing more than religion when it ceases to be supernatural
