Foreign Relations of the United States, 1951: European security and the German question 1977 excerpt from the western wonder land half hours in the western united states the colorado river is not old as we estimate the age of rivers it was born when the rocky mountains were first uplifted to the sky when their lofty peaks collecting the moisture of the storms sent streams dashing down to the plains below upon the western slope of the mountains a number of these streams united in one great river which wound here and there seeking the easiest route across the plateau to the gulf of california at first the banks of the river were low and its course was easily turned one way or another from the base of the mountains to the level of the ocean there is a fall of more than a mile so that the river ran swiftly and was not long in making for itself a definite channel many thousands of years passed america was discovered the spaniards conquered mexico and sent expeditions northward in search of the cities of cibola where it was said that gold and silver were abundant one of these parties is reported to have reached a mighty canon into which it was impossible to descend the canon was so deep that rocks standing in the bottom which
