literary texts written in an american cultural tradition steeped in the interplay between transparency and exposure fear and secrecy security and surveillance and information and disinformation the essays draw on authors ranging from whitman james and ellison to pynchon morrison and eggert to argue that american literature complicates theoretical assumptions about transparency made in other disciplines they question the field's strong theoretical emphasis on present day technopolitical practices and discourses as the location of hegemonic discourse on transparency and instead historicize such phenomena and extend them to discursive spheres that have so far been neglected such as issues of sexuality and race edited by paula martain salvân and sascha pèohlmann contributors tomasz basiuk
