today interviews proliferate everywhere in newspapers on television and in anthologies as a method they are a major tool of medicine the law the social sciences oral history projects and journalism and in the book trade interviews with authors are a major promotional device we live in an interview society how did this happen what is it about the interview form that we find so appealing and horrifying are we all just gossips or is there something more to it what are the implications of our reliance on this bizarre dynamic for publicity subjectivity and democracy literature and the rise of the interview addresses these questions from the perspective of literary culture the book traces the ways in which the interview form has been conceived and deployed by writers and interviewing has been understood as a literary critical practice it excavates what we might call a poetics of the interview form and practice in so doing it covers 150 years and four continents it includes a diverse rostrum of well known writers such as henry james t s eliot ezra pound djuna barnes william burroughs philip roth j m coetzee and toni morrison while reintroducing some individuals that history has forgotten such as betty ross queen of interviewers and julian hawthorne nathaniel s profligate son together these stories expose the interview s position in the literary imagination and consider what this might tell us about conceptions of literature authorship and reading communities in modernity to this day the belief is widespread that the taliban and al qaeda are synonymous that their ideology and objectives are closely intertwined and that they have made common cause against the west for decades in an enemy we created alex strick van linschoten and felix kuehn debunk this myth and reveal the much more complex reality that lies beneath it drawing upon their unprecedented fieldwork in afghanistan as well as their arabic dari and pashtu skills the authors show that the west s present entanglement in afghanistan is predicated on the false assumption that defeating the taliban will forestall further terrorist attacks worldwide while immersing themselves in kandahar society the authors interviewed taliban decision makers field commanders and ordinary fighters thoroughly exploring the complexity of the relationship between the taliban and al qaeda and the individuals who established both groups they show that from the mid 1990s onward the taliban and al qaeda diverged far more often than they converged they also argue that this split creates an opportunity to engage the taliban on two fundamental issues renouncing al qaeda and guaranteeing that afghanistan will not be a sanctuary for international terrorists yet the insurgency is changing and it could soon be too late to find a political solution the authors contend that certain aspects of the campaign in afghanistan especially night raids the killings of innocent civilians and attempts to fragment and decapitate the taliban are having the unintended consequence of energizing the resistance creating more opportunities for al qaeda and helping it to attain its objectives the first book to fully untangle the myths from the realities in the relationship between the taliban and al qaeda an enemy we created is essential reading for anyone who wants to understand what s really happening in afghanistan wives of the leopard explores power and culture in a pre colonial west african state whose army of women and practice of human sacrifice earned it notoriety in the racist imagination of late nineteenth century europe and america tracing two hundred years of the history of dahomey up to the french colonial conquest in 1894 the book follows change in two central institutions one was the monarchy the coalitions of men and women who seized and wielded power in the name of the king the second was the palace a household of several thousand wives of the king who supported and managed state functions looking at dahomey against the backdrop of the atlantic slave trade and the growth of european imperialism edan g bay reaches for a distinctly dahomean perspective as she weaves together evidence drawn from travelers memoirs and local oral accounts from the religious practices of vodun and from ethnographic studies of the twentieth century wives of the leopard thoroughly integrates gender into the political analysis of state systems effectively creating a social history of power more broadly it argues that women as a whole and men of the lower classes were gradually squeezed out of access to power as economic resources contracted with the decline of the slave trade in the nineteenth century in these and other ways the book provides an accessible portrait of dahomey s complex and
