In time is a 2011 American science fiction action film written, produced, and directed by Andrew Niccol. Justin Timberlake and Amanda Seyfried star as inhabitants of a society that uses time from one's lifespan as its primary currency, with each individual possessing a clock on their arm that counts down how long they have to live. In time, directed by Andrew Niccol, with Justin Timberlake, Olivia Wilde, Shyloh Oostwald, and Johnny Galecki in a future where people stop aging at 25 but are engineered to live only one more year, having the means to buy your way out of it. In a future where time is money and the wealthy can live forever, Will Salas (Justin Timberlake) is a poor man who rarely has more than a day's worth of life on his time clock. When he saves a young heiress (Olivia Wilde) from a corrupt system where time is money, literally enabling the wealthy to live forever, he must figure out a way to bring down a system where time is money, literally enabling the wealthy to live forever. The premise is damnably intriguing, written and directed by Andrew Niccol, maker of such original sci-fi movies as Gattaca (1997) and S1mone (2002). It involves once again people whose lives depend on an overarching technology: it costs time to cross time zone borders, that's how the rich make sure that the poor never cross over into their zones. Upon arrival, he enters a casino where he meets an old millionaire time loaning businessman Philippe Weis (Philippe Noire). In the not too distant future, the aging gene has been switched off to avoid overpopulation; time has become the currency, and the way people pay for luxuries and necessities. The rich can live forever while the rest try to negotiate for their immortality. In time (2011) pg 13 action sci-fi thriller watch options trailer 1. Set in a world where people stop aging at 25 but are genetically engineered to live only one more year, having the means to buy your way out of it.
