other and commented that they were no longer in an asynchronous orbit sergio again uttered oh my god he went to his locker and brought out the bottle of vodka that he had been saving to celebrate on their last orbit it is time we toast to the death of the earth and to our own slow death here on the station he calmly commented as he poured the drinks there were to be only a few survivors each would face a different challenge and for the proverbial forty days and forty nights there would be so much rain that no one would be able to do much survival was a monumental accomplishment and one mostly of luck it was the immediate actions after the event that distinguished each survivor the barriers for each survivor were as unique as was the reason for their survival an over imbiber recovering in a cave two young boys in another cave two lovers bound together to experience a joint miracle a train passenger who experiences a painful but miraculous journey from one continent to another each survivor had a unique and strange tale the number of survivors were at first counted on only one hand the earth went from eight billion to a number equivalent to when man had first emerged from the forest to walk the earth once again it seemed that man was exiting the cave to repopulate the earth several of the survivors focused first on their survival but quickly began to look for and to save those around them they envisioned finding more survivors and rebuilding the world anew they exuded hope they had the simple goal of ensuring survival and they shared a vision of the future that held survival as the purpose the survivors slowly find each other they realize that they are the few the lucky and take on the heavy lifting of getting a new world order in place amazingly a global unity trans multicultural multiracial multigender democratic society after more than thirty years the sun shines bright the population of the earth is slowly climbing toward its first one billion the humans are repopulating every animal that they rescue occasionally bodies still get washed up during ocean storms but these have become rare hope has risen that a new world order will ensure a friendlier global society

Treating the Trauma Survivor in recent years considerable research as well as clinical guidelines based on study findings has been published on the treatment of posttraumatic stress disorder ptsd a gap remains however between the controlled environments and protocols used in intervention research and the more complex and often imperfect settings and situations that clinicians must navigate in daily practice moreover clinicians routinely see patients whose comorbid substance abuse self destructive behavior or medical illness would likely exclude them from research studies in short although the extensive literature is certainly helpful in articulating the various treatment modalities available to clinicians the strength of the evidence for the efficacy of the treatments and the recommendations and personal preferences of experts the literature does not address the real life dilemmas that clinicians face in attempting to treat trauma survivors what is needed is a way to bridge the gap between research and practice to translate study findings into everyday clinical realities treating trauma survivors with ptsd answers that need its authors experienced researchers and clinicians who are at the forefront of conceptual discourse on trauma and ptsd are uniquely qualified to offer guidance on these issues among the specific topics covered are the following diagnosis and assessment of and treatment planning for trauma survivors with ptsd including clinical presentations related to trauma exposure and ptsd and the implications of comorbid symptoms and disorders treatment matching in clinical practice how treatment outcome findings can be used to develop profiles for predicting which patients are most likely to respond to which treatments medications useful in the treatment of ptsd and the strength of the empirical evidence for their efficacy trauma in children and the efficacy of various treatments including a discussion of how treatment for children differs from that for adults assessment and treatment of multiply traumatized patients those with both recent trauma and a history of childhood trauma or abuse treatment of trauma survivors in the acute aftermath of traumatic events including a review of some of the exciting developments in the field regarding risk factors e g normal vs pathological coping responses that influence which individuals are most likely to develop ptsd after such events these topics have never been more relevant than now in the wake of the attacks that shook our country on september 11 2001 it is the authors hope that by reading this book mental health practitioners will gain more confidence in applying the specialized techniques described in empirical studies to their own practices and clinical realities many preachers and teachers of preaching talk about the gospel few name it theologies of the gospel in context assembles a gifted group of homileticians who think that preachers need to be able to articulate the gospel not in general but in a certain time and place in context they consider what gospel sounds like for people under oppression in capitalist economies in neocolonial contexts for survivors of trauma and for disestablished mainline churches marred by racism preachers will appreciate these preacher scholars desire to articulate the gospel with clarity especially since the term is so often left unexplained homileticians will see a new genre of doing their work as teachers and researchers in preaching a vision that helps preaching see itself not just as an adjunct to exegesis or communication but a place of doing theology in these pages homiletics is more than technique it is a truly theological discipline
