farm and factory illuminates the importance of the midwest in u s labor history america s heartland often overlooked in studies focusing on other regions or particular cities or industries has a distinctive labor history characterized by the sustained simultaneous growth of both agriculture and industry since the transfer of labor from farm to factory did not occur in the midwest until after world war ii industrialists recruited workers elsewhere especially from europe and the american south the region s relatively underdeveloped service sector shaped by the presumption that goods were more desirable than service ultimately led to agonizing problems of adjustment as agriculture and industry evolved in the late twentieth century this book deals with decision making in environments of significant data un certainty with particular emphasis on operations and production management applications for such environments we suggest the use of the robustness approach to decision making which assumes inadequate knowledge of the decision maker about the random state of nature and develops a decision that hedges against the worst contingency that may arise the main motivating factors for a decision maker to use the robustness approach are it does not ignore uncertainty and takes a proactive step in response to the fact that forecasted values of uncertain parameters will not occur in most environments it applies to decisions of unique non repetitive nature which are common in many fast and dynamically changing environments it accounts for the risk averse nature of decision makers and it recognizes that even though decision environments are fraught with data uncertainties decisions are evaluated ex post with the realized data for all of the above reasons robust decisions are dear to the heart of operational decision makers this book takes a giant first step in presenting decision support tools and solution methods for generating robust decisions in a variety of interesting application environments robust discrete optimization is a comprehensive mathematical programming framework for robust decision making
