creating a persistent gap in achievement during the school years that has eluded several decades of reform. Delpit's bestselling and paradigm-shifting first book, Other People's Children, focused on cultural slippage in the classroom between white teachers and students of color. Now, in Multiplication Is for White People, Delpit reflects on two decades of reform efforts including No Child Left Behind, standardized testing, the creation of alternative teacher certification paths, and the charter school movement that have still left a generation of poor children of color feeling that higher educational achievement isn't for them. In chapters covering primary, middle, and high school as well as college, Delpit concludes that it's not that difficult to explain the persistence of the achievement gap in her wonderful trademark style, punctuated with telling classroom anecdotes and informed by time spent at dozens of schools across the country. Delpit outlines an inspiring and uplifting blueprint for raising expectations for other people's children based on the simple premise that multiplication and every aspect of advanced education is for everyone. They were part of the Gautreaux program, one of the largest court-ordered desegregation efforts in the country's history, named for the Chicago activist Dorothy Gautreaux.
