this volume deals with land degradation which is occurring in almost all terrestrial biomes and agro ecologies in both low and high income countries and is stretching to about 30 of the total global land area about three billion people reside in these degraded lands however the impact of land degradation is especially severe on livelihoods of the poor who heavily depend on natural resources the annual global cost of land degradation due to land use and cover change lucc and lower cropland and rangeland productivity is estimated to be about 300 billion usd sub saharan africa ssa accounts for the largest share 22 of the total global cost of land degradation only about 38 of the cost of land degradation due to lucc which accounts for 78 of the us

300 billion loss is borne by land users and the remaining share 62 is borne by consumers of ecosystem services off the farm the results in this volume indicate that reversing land degradation trends makes both economic sense and has multiple social and environmental benefits on average one us dollar investment into restoration of degraded land returns five us dollars the findings of the country case studies call for increased investments into the rehabilitation and restoration of degraded lands including through such institutional and policy measures as strengthening community participation for sustainable land management enhancing government effectiveness and rule of law improving access to markets and rural services and securing land tenure the assessment in this volume has been conducted at a time when there is an elevated interest in private land investments and when global efforts to achieve sustainable development objectives have intensified in this regard the results of this volume can contribute significantly to the ongoing policy debate and efforts to design strategies for achieving sustainable development goals and related efforts to address land degradation and halt biodiversity loss this handbook responds to the needs and aspirations of current and future generations of development economists by providing critical reference material alongside or in relation to mainstream propositions despite the potential of globalisation in accelerating growth and development in low and middle income countries through the spread of technology knowledge and information its current practice in many parts of the world has led to processes that are socially economically and politically and ecologically unsustainable it is critical for development economists to engage with the pivotal question of how to change the nature and course of globalisation to make it work for inclusive and sustainable development applying a critical and pluralistic approach the chapters in this handbook examine economics of development paths under globalisation focusing on sustainable development in social environmental institutional and political economy dimensions it aims at advancing the frontier of development economics in these key aspects and generating more refined policy perspectives it is critically reflective in examining effects of globalisation on development paths to date and in terms of methodological and analytical approaches as well as forward thinking in policy perspectives with a view to laying a foundation for sustainable development

Advanced International Trade 2014-12-01

in the year that we celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the arethuse association the second issue of 2014 includes a selection of research papers on topics of study and research that have always been focused on by the international university research groups that are members of the arethuse association these main research fields are economics statistics economic development resources and territory services and labor markets strategic management r d management governance and public administration strategy and control public finance finance policies national versus european finance and european finance institutions in the first paper consilio cicellin and scuotto discuss the possibility of creating new models of healthcare they affirm that the changing welfare system involves processes that are linked to the low cost approach and new initiatives are designed to meet the social need for community health and draw on the complex world of bottom up approach this article analyses the modern paradigm of social innovation by examining the issue of healthcare through the cases that currently exist in italy the authors demonstrate that low cost healthcare is a specific model of social innovation which does not just consist of low prices for mass consumption as a competitive incentive this research paper has the advantage of analysing the italian healthcare system as an extended enterprise where the boundaries between internal and external resources appear to be less rigidly defined moreover social innovation is not solely designed in order to increase the quality of the standard of living but also to play an important role in terms of increased competitiveness efficiency of resources employed and sustainability in the second research contribution gonza lez laxe marti n palmero and pateiro rodriguez present the results of an important piece of research regarding a sample of 142 countries in which they have verified that when income per capita rgpd in a country is high the ecological footprint ef per capita is also at a high level following this experience carried out in different economic spaces this paper assesses the evolution of incomes per capita in the spanish economy together with its ecological footprint on the basis of the period 1955 2000 to carry out this research the authors defined two theoretical concepts identified as autonomous ecological footprint and marginal tendency this research work highlights how the spanish economy underwent a significant structural change after the second third of 20th century more precisely the subsequent analysis of the most significant features in the different stages of the spanish development as well as the structural changes will permit the establishment of a series of recommendations for the implementation of sustainability plans and programs caledero n patier and campuzano analyse the regulation of corporate restructuring in spain as a response to a dynamic changing and internationalized economic reality that requires business operators i e companies to conduct operations to reorganize or alter their financial or personnel structure transformation merger division exchange of securities change of registered office etc within an appropriate legal tax and accounting framework to ensure their viability and effectiveness they highlight how the commercial and tax regulations applicable to corporate restructuring operations urgently requires harmonization not only to rationalise the rules in their development and implementation but also to facilitate and encourage these types of operations which are often a very important means of maintaining many corporate structures this paper presents an interesting evaluative analysis of the differences between commercial and tax legislation that is applicable to the split off and conducts a critical and evaluative analysis of existing normative discrepancies on this issue the research paper of rivero ceballos and serafin corral discuss the idea that natural resources economic evaluation processes cannot be isolated from scientific uncertainties and the influence of stakeholders strong concerns they affirm that environmental decision making processes are far from ideal processes where knowledge is available and experts and decision makers are unaffected by the pressure of stakeholders interests based on the empirical analysis of the most representative business cases currently involving the gas and oil drill exploration occurring in the waters adjacent to the canary islands the study analyses the expected economic benefits integrated qualitative assessment tools are implemented in particular a multi criteria assessment is carried out and two scenarios are built it is interesting how this analysis integrated formal and informal aspects which may be used later for the resolution of the problem or for ways of exploring policy compromises mingorance arnai z and barrusao castillo s interesting contribution analyses why some european countries have unemployment rates that are higher than others by utilising a panel data model for the period 1985 2011 in order to know which variables are better to resolve unemployment they study the role of macroeconomic and institutional variables labor and product markets regulations on the unemployment rate in 14 countries of the eu the empirical results that they find and the conclusions with motivated proposals to reduce the unemployment rate are interesting this is very important given that the unemployment rate is one of the macroeconomic variables that is most affected by business cycles and its fluctuations a problem in all countries in the end they highlight how employment protection legislation the minimum wage coordination of wage bargaining a high employers contribution to social security and entry barriers may explain in part the high unemployment rates in some countries di az pe rez and gonza lez morales offer empirical evidence of the profile of the working population in spain according to gender quantify the extent to which self employment or salaried employment is associated with certain characteristics or status employment status education level activity sector age marital status and analyse the situation in 2009 their research work is particular important in analysing the effect of the economic crisis on the decline suffered by spain s working population between 2005 and 2009 and on the significant gender differences in employment status finally we would like to remind readers that this issue is the fruit of scientific research work that has been undertaken by numerous researchers of european universities the articles presented in this issue are the result of a process of rigorous selection in a scientific sense carried out both by the scientific committee and by the editorial board
