historically trainees were expected to learn their jobs by exposure by picking up what they could from experienced fellow employees there were not termed trainees since they were not systematically trained but they enjoyed such titles as helpers apprentices in industrial circles but this method of learning was haphazard learning time was lengthy motivational needs often neglected with the possibility of many incorrect procedures being passed on there was also a certain fear from experienced members of the workforce that passing on their skills would ultimately lead to their own exit planned economy and economic growth in the country has given emphasis to the need for a more systematic means of training for job skills thus was born a more analytical approach of training it is important that due attention is paid to training right from the time when one first starts doing a job if not as it is the unfortunate experience of many it is attempts at learning games and sports it will be extremely difficult if not almost impossible to unlearn what has once been learnt wrong no one's own during the initial stages
