equality the battle cry of the french revolution has come to be accepted as everyone s birthright today but what is equality is it a chimera in a world manifestly still abounding in inequality among individuals nations and races to this eternally fascinating subject eighteen outstanding political scientists jurists and philosophers address themselves with vigor and profundity in this important and illuminating work part i deals with fundamental concepts of equality the first paper in this section explores such issues as the meaning the justification and the dialectics of equality wherein some of its manifestations are confronted and limited by others while the second paper criticizes the first essay and examines the legal aspects of equality another paper pursues the notion of proportionate equality to what he views as its ultimate reality that of a purely formal logical concept while another argues that egalitarianism has reference to human interests which in fact give it content another viewpoint considers how far different kinds of equality are compatible with one another and with the enlargement of freedom and fraternity in industrial society the final paper in this section talks widely over basic issues raised by the various interpretations of equality part ii deals with sources of beliefs about equality the papers in this section consider the implications for egalitarianism of christianity judaism and hinduism the final essay in this section surveys the treatment of and implications for egalitarianism in the thinking of the existentialists part iii is concerned with the political and legal applications of equality one of the papers suggests that toqueville s providential fact of the gradual development of the principle of equality might possibly be on the eve of a reversal and concludes with justification of political equality another attacks the notion of equality of opportunity contending that it is not an authentic expression of the democratic ideal and temper which requires instead an affirmation of being and belonging following that the highly topical problem of equality in the administration of justice is discussed as well as the deals with many subtle distinctions involved in the application of the idea of equality to the rule of law the book concludes with the topic of treatments of the problem of equality in the realm of international politics and organization

Equality for Families 1999

this discussion paper provides an updated analysis of gendered economic inequality in high and middle income countries a review of the literature demonstrates that such an analysis needs to explicitly recognize that gender poverty and economic inequality are intrinsically linked specifically the paper addresses two sets of questions first how do intra family resource allocation and distribution patterns both reflect and shape gender inequalities in power and well being and what factors including policy related ones can mitigate these inequalities second how do families as gendered institutions contribute to broader socio economic inequalities and what can be done to reduce reverse these inequalities using data from the lis database this paper shows considerable differences among 42 countries with respect to how likely women were to have their own income the period from 2000 to 2010 2014 saw increasing rates of own incomes as well as women s incomes constituting larger shares in total household income a key finding is that in countries where many women have an income of their own relative poverty rates are lower

Economics & Equality 1979

this paper analyzes the relationship between fiscal and structural policies and gender inequality in education and labor force participation for countries at different stages of development due to the substantial number of possible factors that link with gender inequality previously highlighted in the literature we pay particular attention to addressing model uncertainty and using various statistical methods to find the variables with the strongest links to gender gaps we find that higher public spending on education better sanitation facilities low adolescent fertility and narrower marriage age gaps are significantly related to narrower gender gaps in education we also find that better infrastructure a stronger institutional environment more equal legal rights and low adolescent fertility rates are strongly associated with higher female labor force participation when labor market protection is low an increase in protection is associated with a narrowing of labor force participation gaps between men and women but when labor market protection levels are high an increase in protection is associated with a widening in labor force participation gaps
