the stories told in this collection though tragic for many illustrate the steadfast determination and courage of people in the face of misfortune and extreme distress from the lesser known weed outbreaks and tornadoes to the world wide influenza outbreak in 1918 that devastated many calgary families these stories focus on the human side of these disasters it may be a heroic individual or the collective response of a community but what is truly remarkable in these stories is the human response to the world being turned upside down by famine and disease by flood fire or rock slide by wind and cold by dynamite or gas explosions or even by the seemingly mundane threat of weeds upon crops it is the resolution to continue to fight and the persistence of the human spirit and its adaptability to challenges that is the true story of a century of development in western canada cultural grammars of nation diaspora and indigeneity in canada considers how the terms of critical debate in literary and cultural studies in canada have shifted with respect to race nation and difference in asking how indigenous and diasporic interventions have remapped these debates the contributors argue that a new cultural grammar is at work and attempt to sketch out some of the ways it operates the essays reference pivotal moments in canadian literary and cultural history and speak to ongoing debates about canadian nationalism postcolonialism migrancy and transnationalism topics covered include the asian race riots in vancouver in 1907 the cultural memory of internment and dispersal of japanese canadians in the 1940s the politics of migrant labour and the domestic labour scheme in the 1960s and the trial of robert pickton in vancouver in 2007 the contributors are particularly interested in how diaspora and indigeneity continue to contribute to this critical reconfiguration and in how conversations about diaspora and indigeneity in the canadian context have themselves been transformed cultural grammars is an attempt to address both the interconnections and the schisms between these multiply fractured critical terms as well as the larger conceptual shifts that have occurred in response to national and postnational arguments
