at the same time especially over the past half century yale has found it challenging to deal administratively with a small humanities department whose standards and philosophy of teaching and learning seemed increasingly at odds with trends in the university as a whole this book places these tensions in the context of yale s responses to post world war 2 interest in the modern middle east the rise of government supported area studies and the consequences of american military actions in iraq and afghanistan numerous illustrations many of them previously unpublished and drawn from a wide range of source material round out the portrait of three centuries of near eastern learning at yale
