cartac the second of the regional technical assistance centers was created with singular emphasis on ownership of technical assistance by the beneficiary countries to this end it was structured as a undp project with the imf as executing agency and with a steering committee empowered to give strategic guidance to the program and select its senior staff from short lists provided by the imf with the spread of the rtac modality the imf has sought to bring the centers activities within the ambit of overall resource planning for technical assistance ensure consistency with the institution s view on priorities for technical assistance in the countries concerned and tighten quality control through backstopping this has created the potential for conflict with the relative independence that cartac has enjoyed from its inception the conclusion in this report however is that alignment with the imf does not necessarily undermine country ownership and that the steering committee can play a pivotal role in defusing any tension that may arise shemlan a small once unknown village in the hills overlooking beirut became notorious throughout the middle east when bertram thomas chose it as the location for the middle east centre for arab studies mecas in 1947 the knowledge that a western government was taking pains to teach its citizens arabic and inform them of arab history society and religion made the arabs suspicious the success of mecas in producing specialists who were the envy of other governments produced doubt and anxiety the power of mecas to attract british but also foreign diplomats and businessmen should have made it a profitable enterprise instead there was constant penny pinching and reluctance to invest in retrospect it looks like an excellent idea developed by improvisation through its early troubles which was then allowed to die in its prime was it yet another example of a british invention unexploited this paper investigates the medium term behavior of output following banking crises and its association with pre and post crisis conditions and policies we find that output tends to be depressed substantially following banking crises with no rebound to the precrisis trend however growth does eventually tend to return to its precrisis rate with substantial crosscountry variation in outcomes the depressed path of output typically results from reductions of roughly equal proportions in the employment rate the capital to labor ratio and total factor productivity initial conditions that are strongly associated with medium run output losses include the short run change in output the occurrence of a joint banking and currency crisis and a high precrisis level of investment short run fiscal and monetary stimulus is associated with smaller medium run deviations of output and growth from the precrisis trend
