international peacebuilding offers a concise practical and accessible introduction to the growing field of peacebuilding for students and practitioners this new textbook comprises three parts each dealing with a key aspect of peacebuilding part i defines the core concepts and theoretical discussions that provide the philosophical grounds for contemporary peacebuilding activities part ii divides the procedures of peacebuilding into three phases and examines some of the important features of each phase part iii examines the key areas of the practice of peacebuilding the volume approaches peacebuilding from the viewpoints of individual actors or institutions introducing a range of theoretical discussions with which students can critically examine contemporary peacebuilding practice as well as presenting detailed case studies for key issues highlighted in the text in doing so the book aims to provide more concrete ideas on how peacebuilding programmes are planned and implemented in the field and which major issues should be addressed by peacebuilding practitioners this book will be essential reading for all students of peacebuilding conflict transformation and post conflict reconstruction and recommended reading for students of international organisations international security and ir in general

Peacebuilding in the United Nations

2019-05-06

this book traces the trajectory and different meanings of the concept of peacebuilding in the united nations since the early 1990s it analyses how that concept gained life in a particular context and the implications of this process for the organisation s support to societies affected by armed conflict in general and for peace operations in particular departing from tenets about the influence of ideas in world politics and engaging with the critique of the liberal peace scholarship the book provides a theoretically informed narrative of how peacebuilding acquired different meanings while remaining largely motivated justified legitimated and informed by a proactive and top down agenda of promoting liberal democratic institutions norms and values as a remedy to the challenges faced by societies affected by armed conflict the book will appeal to scholars policymakers and practitioners in peacebuilding and post conflict development

The Interaction Between Local and International Peacebuilding Actors

this book helps to better understand how the interaction between local and international peacebuilding actors influences the outcomes of their programs based on the case study of ituri in the democratic republic of congo it analyses the relationships between local and international peacebuilding actors over the long term and assesses ways to overcome the obstacles to more cooperative partnerships focusing on perceptions the book nuances existing definitions of war peacebuilding and peace and allows for a more comprehensive understanding of conflict contexts thereby it contributes to the literature on peacebuilding effectiveness and makes concrete suggestions for translating these findings into practice contemporary practices of international peacebuilding and post conflict reconstruction are often unsatisfactory there is now a growing awareness of the significance of local governments and local communities as an intergrated part of peacebuilding in order to improve quality and enhance precision of interventions in spite of this the local is rarely a key factor in peacebuilding hence everyday peace is hardly achieved the aim of this volume is threefold firstly it illuminates the substantial reasons for working with a more localised approach in politically volatile contexts secondly it consolidates a growing debate on the significance of the local in these contexts thirdly it problematizes the often too swiftly used concept the local and critically discuss to what extent it is at all feasible to integrate this into macro oriented and securitized contexts this is a unique volume tackling the local turn of peacebuilding in a comprehensive and critical way this book was published as a special issue of third world quarterly this book interrogates the common perception that liberal peace is in crisis and explores the question can the local turn save liberal peacebuilding presenting a case for a liberal renaissance in peacebuilding the work interrogates the assumptions behind the popular perception that liberal peace is in crisis it re examines three of the cases igniting the debate cambodia kosovo and timor leste and evaluates how these transitional administrations implemented their liberal mandates and how local involvement affected the conduct of their activities in so doing it reveals that these cases were neither liberal nor peacebuilding it also demonstrates that while local involvement is imperative to peacebuilding illiberal local involvement restores an elite centred status quo and reinforces or creates new forms of conflict and violence using both liberal and critical lenses the author ultimately argues that the conceptual and operational departure from the holistic and comprehensive origins of liberal peacebuilding in fact paved the way for the liberal peace crisis itself drawing on analysis from in depth field research and interviews this book will be of much interest to students of peacebuilding peacekeeping statebuilding security studies and international relations in general abstract this paper illustrates the meaning of peacebuilding as a comprehensive sustainable process that aims at resolving the conflicts which spread widely in the post cold war era within different nations and among them peacebuilding as a sustainable process requires the intervention of different actors at the local national and international levels and requires the cooperation between them to coordinate their roles in the post conflict situation this paper also discusses specifically the role of ngos as one of these important actors in the international community and the different actions that carried out by them that help in providing a healthy environment for sustaining peace and development at the same time however linking peace with aid by ngos in most of the cases added more damage in the targeted post conflict countries instead of depleting it discussed within are the challenges that have been met by different ngos at different levels when trying to incorporate peacebuilding into development and while intervening in the why do international peacebuilding organizations sometimes succeed and sometimes fail even within the same country bridging the gaps between the peacekeeping peacebuilding and global governance scholarship this book argues that international peacebuilding organizations repeatedly fail because they are accountable to global actors not to local institutions or people international peacebuilding organizations can succeed only when country based staff bypass existing accountability structures and empower local stakeholders to hold their global organizations accountable for achieving local level peacebuilding outcomes in other words the innovative if seemingly wayward actions of individual country office staff are necessary to improve peacebuilding performance using in depth studies of organizations operating in burundi over a fifteen year period combined with fieldwork in the democratic republic of the congo nepal this book examines a new type of state formation evoked by the rise of transnational rule what schia calls franchised states drawing on anthropological studying through fieldwork within the un organization he demonstrates how peacebuilding activities turned liberia into an object of governing whereby the un in seeking to build the state also became the state the sovereign state of liberia here emerges as a franchise rather than a self contained entity two implications follow first that international peacebuilding turns post conflict countries into clients of the international community second that sovereignty is no longer exclusively associated with the state it is organized in and through specific practices of governing where a state actor is only one among a range of actors with these findings the book moves beyond previous work on peacebuilding by focusing on the unbundling of sovereignty it contributes to the literature on the changing forms of sovereignty by showing the specific ways in which sovereignty is organized packaged and enacted often by actors working under international auspices this book will be of interest to practitioners and students interested in international organizations international relations the study of international practices un and peacebuilding post conflict peacebuilding comes at a critical time for post conflict peacebuilding its rapid move towards the top of the international political agenda has been accompanied by added scrutiny as the international community seeks to meet the multi dimensional challenges of building a just and sustainable peace in societies ravaged by war beyond the strictly operational dimension there is considerable ambiguity in the concepts and terminology used to discuss post conflict peacebuilding this ambiguity undermines efforts to agree on common understandings of how peace can be most effectively built thereby impeding swift coherent action accordingly this lexicon aims to clarify and illuminate the multiple facets of post conflict peacebuilding by presenting its major themes and trends from an analytical perspective to this end the book opens with a general introduction on the concept of post conflict peacebuilding followed by twenty six essays on its key elements including capacity building conflict transformation reconciliation recovery rule of law security sector reform and transitional justice written by international experts from a range of disciplines including political science and international relations international law economics and sociology these essays cover the whole spectrum of post conflict peacebuilding in reflecting a diversity of perspectives the lexicon sheds light on many different challenges associated with post conflict peacebuilding for each key concept a generic definition is proposed which is then expanded through discussion of three main areas the meaning and origin of the concept its content and essential components and its means of implementation including lessons learned from past practice a fundamental challenge plagues the global peacebuilding community how can technocratic approaches to peacebuilding that are rooted in short term project based execution of activities further the longer term transformative outcomes like altering young people s attitudes and beliefs about peace and violence in response to this global challenge in peacebuilding legacy sukanya podder analyzes the long term effects of peacebuilding programmes involving children and young people podder unpacks the concept of peacebuilding legacy through the lens of time transformation and intergenerational peace podder also develops unique qualitative cues for measuring legacy in terms of the institutional normative and organizational logics if norms resonate strongly with the local context they are likely to encourage strong retention and meaningful adoption over time successful institutionalization of project models through planned handover to successor national organizations or government departments holds the key to stronger local ownership organizational learning and reflection can support this process through a more strategic approach to programming and through post exit studies regarding attitude change podder found that the media and peace education projects that targeted individuals ingrained beliefs and values but overlooked the role of group social norms had only limited persuasive effects to shift the values practices norms and beliefs of the younger generation the mindset of the older generation must also be targeted changes in the legal political economic and other social institutions are critical for long term and meaningful transformation this requires adopting an ecological model of peace genocide results from the culmination of conflicts over identity a group of people that feels threatened by extinction resorts to genocide as a pathologically defensive reaction this poses a security dilemma that can only be broken by quelling the feelings of threat and fear that prompt mass violence in order to prevent genocide it is essential to understand the internal dynamics of identity conflict it is also important to intervene at the early stages of identity conflict the parties involved require external help to ease tensions in this volume noted thinkers and practitioners of conflict management who hail from ten different countries present ideas on how to prevent identity issues from causing fear and escalating into genocide they focus on measures for handling the internal dynamics of parties facing identity conflicts as well as considerations for arranging external assistance contributors address the problem of outbidders actors whose non conciliatory attitudes put them in positions of leadership in their identity groups since political extremism and violence can signal resolve and commitment to a group cause moderates give way to hardliners spoilers who believe that peace undermines their interests and power also play a key role in the dynamics of conflicts careful attention is necessary to select appropriate third parties who can pull conflicting parties off the course of conflict the authors discuss the concepts and practices involved in changing structures and attitudes to ease tensions as well as the measures interveners must take to work in the midst of conflicting groups this book critically examines the relationship between protecting human rights and building peace in post violence societies it explores the conditions that must be present and strategies that should be adopted for the former to contribute to the latter the author argues that human rights can aid peacebuilding efforts by helping victims of past violence to articulate their grievance and by encouraging the state to respond to and provide them with a meaningful remedy this usually happens either through a process of adjudication whereby human rights can offer guidance to the judiciary as to the best way to address such grievances or through the passing and implementation of human rights laws and policies that seek to promote peace however this positive relationship between human rights and peace is both qualified and context specific through an interdisciplinary and comparative analysis of four case studies the book identifies the conditions that can support the effective use of human rights as peacebuilding tools developing these the book recommends a series of strategies that peacebuilders should adopt and rely on this book examines how gendered agency emerges in peacebuilding contexts it develops a feminist critique of the international peacebuilding interventions through a study of transitional justice policies and practices implemented in bosnia herzegovina and local activists responses to official discourses surrounding them extending nancy fraser s tripartite model of justice to peacebuilding contexts the book also advances notions of recognition redistribution and representation as crucial components of gender just peace it argues that recognising women as victims and survivors of conflict achieving a gender equitable distribution of material and symbolic resources and enabling women to participate as agents of transitional justice processes are all essential for transforming the structural inequalities that enable gender violence and discrimination to materialise before during and after conflict this study establishes a new avenue of analysis for understanding responses and resistances to international peacebuilding by offering a sustained engagement with feminist social and political theory the concept of hybridity highlights complex processes of interaction and transformation between different institutional and social forms and normative systems it has been used in numerous ways to generate important analytical and methodological insights into peacebuilding and development its most recent application in the social sciences has also attracted powerful critiques that have highlighted its limitations and challenged its continuing usage this book examines whether the value of hybridity as a concept can continue to be harnessed and how its shortcomings might be mitigated or overcome it does so in an interdisciplinary way as hybridity has been used as a benchmark across multiple disciplines and areas of practical engagement over the past decade including peacebuilding state building justice reform security development studies anthropology and economics this book encourages a dialogue about the uses and critiques of hybridity from a variety of perspectives and vantage points including deeply ethnographic works high level theory and applied policy work the authors conclude that there is continued value in the concept of hybridity but argue that this value can only be realised if the concept is engaged with in a reflexive and critical way this book was originally based on the swisspeace annual conference 2012 the publication examines the delicate balance between external interventions and locally led initiatives it addresses the question of what local means in the peacebuilding and development context which actors on the ground actually represent the local level and how external actors choose their partners from amongst them moreover it examines how local ownership emerging as key criteria for any external intervention is constituted does this concept only imply local participation or is local control from the outset a must finally it assesses the potential of locally led initiatives and local conflict resolution mechanisms and their interaction with external interventions several authors provide insights on these questions and nuance our thinking about both local ownership and external interventions as such the publication aims to encourage critical reflections on this topical debate in peacebuilding and development
