named one of the best books of 2017 by the los angeles times the boston globe popsugar financial times chicago review of books huffington post san francisco chronicle thrillist book riot national post canada kirkus and publishers weekly from the author of the southern reach trilogy comes jeff vandermeer s borne a story about two humans and two creatures am i a person borne asked me yes you are a person i told him but like a person you can be a weapon too in borne a young woman named rachel survives as a scavenger in a ruined city half destroyed by drought and conflict the city is dangerous littered with discarded experiments from the company a biotech firm now derelict and punished by the unpredictable predations of a giant bear rachel ekes out an existence in the shelter of a run down sanctuary she shares with her partner wick who deals his own homegrown psychoactive biotech one day rachel finds borne during a scavenging mission and takes him home borne as salvage is little more than a green lump plant or animal but exudes a strange charisma borne reminds rachel of the marine life from the island nation of her birth now lost to rising seas there is an attachment she resents in this world any weakness can kill you yet against her instincts and definitely against wick s wishes rachel keeps borne she cannot help herself borne learning to speak learning about the world is fun to be with and in a world so broken that innocence is a precious thing for borne makes rachel see beauty in the desolation around her she begins to feel a protectiveness she can ill afford he was born but i had borne him but as borne grows he begins to threaten the balance of power in the city and to put the security of her sanctuary with wick at risk for the company it seems may not be truly dead and new enemies are creeping in what borne will lay bare to rachel as he changes is how precarious her existence has been and how dependent on subterfuge and secrets in the aftermath nothing may ever be the same

This World Is Full of Monsters 2017-11-08

a 2020 locus award finalist jeff vandermeer s dead astronauts presents a city with no name of its own where in the shadow of the all powerful company lives human and otherwise converge in terrifying and miraculous ways at stake the fate of the future the fate of earth all the earths a messianic blue fox who slips through warrens of time and space on a mysterious mission a homeless woman haunted by a demon who finds the key to all things in a strange journal a giant leviathan of a fish centuries old who hides a secret remembering a past that may not be its own three ragtag rebels waging an endless war for the fate of the world against an all powerful corporation a raving madman who wanders the desert lost in the past haunted by his own creation an invisible monster whose name he has forgotten and whose purpose remains hidden this edited collection approaches the most pressing discourses of the anthropocene and posthumanist culture through the surreal yet instructive lens of jeff vandermeer s fiction in contrast to universalist and essentializing ways of responding to new material realities vandermeer s work invites us to re imagine human subjectivity and other collectivities in the light of historically unique entanglements we face today the ecological technological aesthetic epistemological and political challenges of life in the anthropocene era situating these messy multi scalar material complexities of life in close relation to their ecological material and colonialist histories his fiction renders them at once troublingly familiar and strangely generative of other potentialities and insight the collection measures vandermeer s work as a new kind of speculative surrealism his texts capturing the strangeness of navigating a world in which nature has become radically uncanny due to global climate change and powerful bio technologies the first collection to survey academic engagements with vandermeer this book brings together scholars in the fields of environmental literature science fiction genre studies american literary history philosophy of technology and digital cultures to reflect on the environmentally culturally aesthetically and politically central questions his fiction poses to predominant understandings of the anthropocene
