an essential guide to the stability and control of power systems integrating large scale renewable energy sources the rapid development of smart grids and the integration of large scale renewable energy have added daunting new layers of complexity to the long standing problem of power system stability control this book offers a systematic stochastic analysis of these nonlinear problems and provides comprehensive countermeasures to improve power system performance and control with large scale hybrid power systems power system stability analysis and control is by no means a new topic but the integration of large scale renewable energy sources has added many new challenges which must be addressed especially in the areas of time variance time delay and uncertainties robust adaptive control strategies and countermeasures are the key to avoiding inadequate excessive or lost loads within hybrid power systems written by an internationally recognized innovator in the field this book describes the latest theory and methods for handling power system angle stability within power networks dr jing ma analyzes and provides control strategies for large scale power systems and outlines state of the art solutions to the entire range of challenges facing today s power systems engineers features nonlinear stochastic analysis of power system stability and control offers proven countermeasures to optimizing power system performance focuses on nonlinear time variance long time delays high uncertainties and comprehensive countermeasures emphasizes methods for analyzing and addressing time variance and delay when integrating large scale renewable energy includes rigorous algorithms and simulations for the design of analysis and control modeling power system wide area stability analysis and control is must reading for researchers studying power system stability analysis and control engineers working on power system dynamics and stability and graduate students in electrical engineering interested in the burgeoning field of smart wide area power systems detected recent technological breakthroughs notably in the field of near infrared nir mid infrared mir terahertz thz and gigahertz ghz sources and detectors have led to rugged commercial devices capable of standoff sensing a range of these dangerous substances however at the same time criminal and terrorist organizations have also benefited from the availability of technologies to increase the threat they pose to the security of citizens and a concerted effort is needed to improve early detection measures to identify activities such as the production of homemade explosives or cbrn that can be potentially dangerous to society the key global technological bottleneck to be overcome is the current lack of integration and networking of mature detection technology into early warning systems for critical infrastructures thus this book brings together complementary information connecting the research of leading teams working on critical infrastructure protection with academic developers and industrial producers of state of the art sensors
