The Guild 1951 forging a discipline analyses the growth of the academic discipline of politics and international relations at oxford university over the last hundred years this century marked the maturation and professionalization of social science disciplines such as political science economics and sociology in the world s leading universities the oxford story of teaching and research in politics provides one case study of this transformation and the contributors aim to use its specifics better to understand this general process in their introductory and concluding chapters the editors argue that

oxford is a critical case to consider because several aspects of the university and its organization seem at first glance to militate against disciplinary development and growth oxford s institutional structure in which colleges enjoyed autonomy from the central university until quite recently its proximity to the practice of government and politics through the supply of a steady stream of senior administrators politicians and prime ministers and its emphasis on undergraduate teaching through intensive small group tutorials all distinguish the development of teaching and research on politics in the university from such competitors as manchester or the lse as explained in one of the contributions these themes inform the book s chapters in which the contributors examine the founding of the first dedicated position in political science in the university the study of the british constitution and the development of electoral studies the introduction and consolidation of international relations into the oxford social science curriculum in contrast to the way in which war studies emerged the commitment to research and teaching in political theory the careful harvesting of area studies particularly of latin america and eastern europe including russia and the distinctive role of oxford s two social science graduate colleges nuffield and st antony s in fostering a graduate programme of study and research what emerges from these historically researched and analytical accounts is the surprising capacity of members of the politics discipline at oxford to forge a leading place for their scholarly perspectives and research in such core parts of the discipline as political theory the study of comparative politics as a subject rather than as an area ideas about order in international relations and the scientific study of elections in britain and comparatively that these achievements occurred in a university lacking the formal system of hierarchy and until the last decade departmentalization makes this volume a valuable addition to studies of the professionalization of social science research and teaching in modern universities

Henry Sidgwick - Eye of the Universe 2004-06-07 my behavior is not a yankee s behavior it just is not no matter what my family was italian and different from most other italian immigrants we did not need to melt in we did not need to assimilate because of who we were and what we came from while other people were painting themselves red white and blue we talked italian absorbed our family s history and thought of ourselves as being what we always were in the deepest sense i was never taught to be a yankee which is a fact that comes out in any number of the things that i do and try to accomplish some people have the feeling that what i write and say is too subtle or perhaps manipulative or that i behave a bit outlandishly but those people do not put what i do in the context of italy in the context of that very old very subtle very complicated society which i come from

Info Source 2000 this edited volume presents the conference papers from the 1st international conference on business economics management and sustainability bemas organized by the centre for international trade and business in asia citba at james cook university this book argues that the orthodox methods of external risks climate change adaptation plans and sustainable economic growth in cities are no longer adequate these methods so far have not only ignored the ongoing structural changes associated with economic development but also failed to account for evolving industries composition and the emergence of new comparative advantages and skills specifically this book looks at the vulnerable communities and exposed areas particularly in urban areas that tend to experience higher susceptibility to external risks such as climate change natural disasters and public health emergencies have been largely ignored in incremental adaptation plans vulnerable communities and areas not only require different adaptive responses to climate risk but also possess unlocked adaptive capacity that can motivate different patterns of sustainable development to achieve the goals of the 2030 agenda it is essential therefore to view transformative growth and fundamental reorientation of economic resources as integral parts of the solution social disorganisation and vulnerability are other undesired outcomes of the unpredictable and widespread external economic shocks this is due to a sudden and tough competition between members of society to acquire precious resources most of which may be depleted during unprecedented events such as natural disasters or pandemics resulting in an even more chaotic and disorganised conditions
