navigating the complexities of school life can be a daunting task for young people educators and parents alike this book aims to provide practical guidance and insights to those who find themselves struggling in the educational landscape while grounded in academic theory and evidence based research the primary focus of this book is on offering tangible solutions and real world examples through a series of stories vignettes and problem solving scenarios the authors explore the challenges faced by students teachers and parents from various perspectives by delving into these narratives readers are likely to find answers to the questions that prompted them to pick up this book in the first place the authors propose a model for change called the multidomain model of education and living mdm which aims to facilitate and enhance collaborative relationships between home and school as well as within these two domains rather than advocating for sweeping top down changes that are often met with resistance the mdm offers a flexible framework that can be adapted in part or in its entirety to suit the unique needs of each school community the authors draw upon their own experiences in the irish education system to illustrate how these ideas can be further developed and implemented by inviting parents guardians pupils and school staff to consider incorporating elements of the mdm into their own schools the book serves as a catalyst for meaningful dialogue and incremental change ultimately the authors believe that lasting transformation in irish education will not come from above or below but rather from the middle where people come together to engage in open and constructive conversations this book is a vital contribution to that ongoing dialogue countless public health agencies are trying to solve our most intractable public health problems among them the obesity and opioid epidemics by partnering with corporations responsible for creating or exacerbating those problems we are told industry must be part of the solution but is it time to challenge the partnership paradigm and the popular narratives that sustain it in the perils of partnership jonathan h marks argues that public private partnerships and multi stakeholder initiatives create webs of influence that undermine the integrity of public health agencies distort public health research and policy and reinforce the framing of public health problems and their solutions in ways that are least threatening to the commercial interests of corporate partners we should expect multinational corporations to develop strategies of influence but public bodies can and should develop counter strategies to insulate themselves from corporate influence in all its forms marks reviews the norms that regulate public public interactions separation of powers and private private interactions antitrust and competition law and argues for an analogous set of norms to govern public private interactions he also offers a novel framework to help public bodies identify the systemic ethical implications of their current or proposed relationships with industry actors marks makes a compelling case that the default public private interaction should be at arm s length separation not collaboration he calls for a new paradigm that avoids the perils of corporate influence and more effectively protects and promotes public health the perils of partnership is essential reading for public health officials and policymakers but anyone interested in public health will recognize the urgency of this book
