the pursuit of happiness the pursuit of one s own happiness is it a vain quest and if not vain is it a worthy object of life there have been plenty to condemn it on both grounds they have said that the endeavor is hopeless that to study the art of being happy is like studying the art of making gold which is the only art by which gold can never be made nothing they add is so unpropitious to happiness as the very effort to attain it they go farther let life they proclaim have a larger purpose than enjoyment they quote the mighty plato when he demands that the right aim of living shall stand apart and out of all relation to pleasure or pain they declare that the theory of happiness as an end is the most dangerous of all in modern sociology the tap root of the worst weeds in the political theories of the day for the reason that the individual pursuit of enjoyment is necessarily destructive of that of society at large moreover they urge who dares write of it for he who has not enjoyed it cannot speak wisely of it and in him who has attained it twere insolence to boast of it pleasure and pain are both ultimate and undefinable experiences of the mind we cannot resolve them further but we can note certain unfailling relations they bear to the organism which explain their significance pleasure characterizes the normal and unimpeded exercise of physiological functions of all kinds there are as many elementary pleasures as there are sensations pain is present only in the reverse conditions modern physiologists have established therefore the fundamental law that pleasure connects itself with vital energy pain with its opposite in which they have not gone beyond even if they have caught up to the maxim of spinoza pleasure is an affection whereby the mind passes to a greater perfection pain is an affection whereby it passes to a lesser perfection this is an unusual and challenging study of the inner world of the virginia gentry during jefferson's lifetime it argues that in the years after the revolution the gentry turned away from public life into the privacy of their homes and families a new sentimental religion agreed that the world was filled with woe and advised detachment from it in preparation for a better one to come notions of success likewise offered little cheer as men and women reluctantly accepted the individualistic proposition that their destinies were in their own hands neither religion nor success assured earthly happiness instead virginians sought their salvation in love there in the family and in feeling men and women broke through the eighteenth century's emotional restraint to pursue but not always to find the happiness they believed awaited them essay from the year 2015 in the subject philosophy miscellaneous grade 13 academy for health and sport language english abstract happiness it is not measurable profitable nor tradable yet above all else in the world it is what people seek they want to have happiness and want to know they have a lot of it but happiness like air or water is a hard thing to grasp in one's hand it is intangible happiness plays an important and necessary role in the lives of people around the world perhaps the most curious and interesting phrase ever put into a public document is the pursuit of happiness in america happiness has been engrained in our brains since thomas jefferson penned these famous words in the declaration of independence we hold these truths to be self evident that all men are created equal that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights that among these are life liberty and the pursuit of happiness since then people from all over the world have been engaged in that act pursuing happiness but what exactly is true happiness is it just a feeling why do so many people seek happiness what are the sources are we born with it already what makes us happy and what doesn't does it make sense to effort happiness at all if yes how can it be obtained these are the topics i will cover within the scope of this study paper below now we can understand what plato meant when he said that the right aim of living should stand out of relation to pleasure or pain he had in mind these other activities which give in some natures an intenser sense to self consciousness than any mere nerve reaction the ancient ideal was the greatness of the individual the richness of his imagination the reach of his intellect the strength of his will the firmness of his friendship the devotion of his patriotism the singleness of his life and purpose in some noble aim this it was that floated before the intellectual vision of plato and led him to scorn the pleasures of the sense and the charms of tranquillity let us applaud him for we moderns are not ignorant of the luxury of toil and the joy of strong endeavor we too like othello do prize an alacrity for hardness with seneca we can say res severa est verum gaudium but we hold it needless and unwise to leave any sunny field uncultured on whose soil may be trained to bloom the fragrant flower of pleasure the yearning for joy is a cry of nature which can never be stifled give heed to it and obey it it calls you to wider horizons to warmer sympathies to a fuller growth to a complete development it holds the secret of evolution it is the incessant prompter to a higher form of existence biologists have discovered that the avoidance of painful and the search for pleasurable sensations are the first principles of organic animal life and are those which have developed the amoeba into the man in him this general consciousness has blossomed into self consciousness and to this he owes all the growth of his higher nature his essentially human powers to the extent that this is brought into harmony with the sum of his faculties and with his surroundings he wins that something greater than pleasure which we call happiness from the culture of this if from any source he must look for the advent of those new spirit powers which more fortunate generations in the hereafter may enjoy who knows but those our dear children of after days may gain a still higher form of consciousness one through which they will be brought into harmony with the perfect working of the cosmos and the ancient fable be realized of men who walked the earth as gods
