1900-talet är ett av de mest fascinerande årtusendena i världshistorien. Det är en tid som präglas av stora förändringar, både i samhället och i vetenskapen. Under denna period upptäckte man elektricitet, flygmaskinen och bilen. Det var också en tid av stora krig och sociala omvälvningar. I slutet av 1800-talet och början av 1900-talet var det en tid av stora upptäckelser och framsteg. Det var en tid som präglades av stora förändringar i samhället och i vetenskapen. this book draws on archival oral history and public policy sources to tell a history of foster care in australia from the nineteenth century to the present day it is primarily a social history which places the voices of people directly touched by foster care at the centre of the story but also within the wider social and political debates which have shaped foster care across more than a century the book confronts foster care s difficult past death and abuse of foster children family separation and a general public apathy towards these issues but it also acknowledges the resilience of people who have survived a childhood in foster care and the challenges faced by those who have worked hard to provide good foster homes and to make child welfare systems better these are themes which the book examines from an australian perspective but which often resonate with foster care globally australia has been seen as a land of both punishment and refuge australian literature has explored these controlling alternatives and vividly rendered the landscape on which they transpire twentieth century writers left australia to see the world now australia s distance no longer provides sanctuary but today the global perspective has arrived with a vengeance in contemporary australian literature a world not yet dead nicholas birns tells the story of how novelists poets and critics from patrick white to hannah kent from alexis wright to christos tsiolkas responded to this condition with rancour concern and idealism modern australian literature conveys a tragic sense of the past yet an abiding vision of the way forward birns paints a vivid picture of a rich australian literary voice one not lost to the churning of global markets but in fact given new life by it contrary to the despairing

Working in a Survival School documents how global educational policies trickle down and influence school cultures and the lives of educators and educational leaders. The research traces the everyday work and experience of educators within an all-boys Catholic college suffering an unprecedented decline in enrolment numbers. In short, it was a school in survival mode. Drawing on Dorothy Smith's scholarship on institutional ethnography, the authors document how the school operated and how its efforts to survive influenced the daily work of educators. Institutional ethnography reveals the school as a bounded space subject to a variety of competing local and translocal forces that are historical, political, and economic in nature. Exploring the discursive and material effects of policy on both the work and identities of educators, the authors illustrate how the everyday experience of being an educator is shaped by marketisation and how leaders engage in stratagems to promote the school as a vehicle of educational excellence and quality to lure clientele. Building on existing scholarship in educational policy studies and new public management, Working in a Survival School considers how the global marketisation of education systems is experienced in one school fighting to survive. This book is of interest to educators, school leaders, and academics interested in policy enactment.
