that eagles inhabit ages 8 12 presents a wealth of information on the characteristics habits and habitats of birds with a pristine nature preserve in western alaska as a backdrop a father uses a fishing trip to bond with his daughter and discuss how to solve many of americas most pressing problems free from television and social media the pair enjoys the wilderness while discussing the factors leading to and the solutions to the national debt with a single topic each day the duo examines major problems that were never foreseen by the constitution on day one the deterioration of the american work ethic is discussed in my day we ran to the school bus today the students waddle on the day two there is a healthy exchange about the growth of the welfare state and how the donkey created it but the elephant has helped sustain it on day three there is an in depth discussion about the causes of the national debt finally on day four specific solutions are provided during this backwoods odyssey the american bald eagle serves as a unifying symbol for the republic at risk of economic deterioration perhaps extinction just like this supreme raptor was 40 years ago a premise is that the lower work ethic helps bring about the welfare state that maintains itself at the expensive of the nations citizens and bankrupts the nation in the process one conversation focuses on the causes the fall of the roman empire another discussion focuses on the impact of the great society upon the national economy today indeed individual freedoms such as the ability of the current generation to find a job or later to retire in comfort are lost to an unsustainable national debt that dramatically reduces americas competitiveness in a global economy the book ends with a call for collective action by americans on a scale unseen since the revolution of 1776 in order to change the direction of the republic via a new political partythe bald eagle party this party harnesses social media to counter the entitlement wave and present effective solutions to elimin experience firsthand the inspiring and heartwarming bonds between wounded veterans and their service and companion
