best known for his enormously successful independent film The Crying Game Irish director Neil Jordan has made sixteen feature films since 1982 even after achieving commercial success and critical acclaim with such films as Interview with the Vampire and The Butcher Boy Jordan remains a curiously elusive figure in the era of the celebrity filmmaker Maria Pramaggiore addresses this conundrum by examining Jordan's distinctive style across a surprisingly broad range of genres and production contexts including horror and gangster films Irish themed movies and Hollywood remakes despite the striking diversity of Jordan's films the director consistently returns to gothic themes of loss violence and madness in her sophisticated examination of Mona Lisa Michael Collins and The Good Thief Pramaggiore shows how Jordan presents these dark narratives with a uniquely Irish and postmodern sense of irony this illuminating analysis of one of the cinema's most important artists will be of keen interest to movie enthusiasts as well as students and scholars of contemporary film

the past century's culture wars that Britain has been consumed by but that few North Americans seem aware of have resulted in revised notions of Britishness and British literature yet literary anthologies remain anchored to an archaic Anglo-English interpretation of British literature conflicts have been played out over specific national vs British identity some residents prefer to describe themselves as being from Scotland England Wales or Northern Ireland instead of Britain in debates over immigration race ethnicity class and gender and in arguments over British literature these debates are strikingly detailed in such chapters as the difficulty defining Black British Jewish writers and xenophobia and the Booker Prize connections are also drawn between civil rights movements in the US and UK this generalist cultural study is a lively read and a fascinating glimpse into Britain's changing identity as reflected in 20th and 21st century British literature

Irish literature's roots have been traced to the 7th-9th century. This is a rich and hardy literature starting with descriptions of the brave deeds of kings, saints, and other heroes. These were followed by generous veins of religious, historical, genealogical, scientific, and other works. The development of prose, poetry, and drama raced along with the times. Modern well-known Irish writers include William Yeats, James Joyce, Sean Casey, George Bernard Shaw, Oscar Wilde, John Synge, and Samuel Beckett.

This book aims to bring together a series of analyses on international development assistance in the BRICS, the group of countries that includes Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa. The BRICS states comprise approximately 3 billion people, 40% of the world's population, and in terms of GDP, account for 16.8 trillion dollars, 22% of the world's economy. Over the last decade, the loose coalition has evolved to become a formal partnership on both economic and political fronts. The first formal meeting of the then four BRIC countries took place in 2006 during the United Nations General Assembly. This was followed in 2009 by the first summit of BRICS heads of state, an event which has been convened annually ever since. On 3-5 September 2017, the ninth BRICS summit was hosted in Xiamen, China. This book, an anthology of scholars based in BRICS countries, provides invaluable insights into the emerging global south coalition and will be of interest to scholars, employees of NGOs, and China watchers.
