[love]][][][] contrary to earlier approaches this study suggests that modern greek mg is a language that exhibits reduplication in the form of total reduplication tr the analysis addresses the morphosyntactic phonological semantic and pragmatic aspects of the types of tr in mg and the constraints and or preferences of speakers concerning their use the typology of tr focuses on four cross linguistically common meanings functions identified as the intensive the contrastive the distributive and the iterative part of the analysis of these functional types is based on data that come from two experiments with native speakers the one confirms or refines earlier assumptions on to the relation of the above meanings functions with word classes and semantic features of words the other clarifies the idea of prosodic unity in tr and sheds light into various aspects of the relation of intonation with the interpretation of tr constructions also the formal and lexical constraints on the use of tr are discussed with respect to the status of tr particularly the grammatical lexical opposition in general tr seems to be a borderline case between grammar and the lexicon and a heterogeneous category in that it involves grammatical pragmatic and lexical construction types however the constructions in question meet highly specific criteria for their status as tr types and the process is productive and considerably regularized rule governed in mg in this sense tr should not be merely taken as a strategy for emphasis but should be systematically represented in grammar textbooks this thought provoking activities ezra pound is one of the most significant poets of the twentieth century a writer whose poetry is particularly notable for the intensity of its linguistic qualities indeed from the principles of imagism to the polyphony of his cantos pound is central to our conception of modernism s relationship with language this volume explores the development of pound s understanding of language in the context of twentieth century linguistics and the philosophy of language it draws on largely unpublished archival material in order to provide a broadly chronological account of the development of pound s views and their relation to both his own poetry and to modernist writing as a whole beginning with pound s contentious relationship with philology and his antagonism towards academia the book traces continuities and shifts across pound s career culminating in a discussion of the centrality of language to the conception of his cantos while it contains discussions around significant figures in twentieth century linguistic thought such as ferdinand de saussure and ludwig wittgenstein the book attempts to recover the work of theorists such as leonard bloomfield lucien lévy bruhl and c k ogden figures who were once central to modernism but who have largely been pushed to the periphery of modernist studies the picture of pound that emerges is a figure whose understanding of language is not only bound up with modernist approaches to anthropology politics and philosophy but which calls for a new understanding of modernism s relationship to each wong s contrary to earlier approaches this study suggests that modern greek mg is a language that exhibits reduplication in the form of total reduplication tr the analysis addresses the morphosyntactic phonological semantic and pragmatic aspects of the types of tr in mg and the constraints and or preferences of speakers concerning their use the typology of tr focuses on four cross linguistically common meanings functions identified as the intensive the contrastive the distributive and the iterative part of the analysis of these functional types is based on data that come from two experiments with native speakers the one confirms or refines earlier assumptions on to the relation of the above meanings functions with word classes and semantic features of words the other clarifies the idea of prosodic unity in tr and sheds light into various aspects of the use of tr are discussed with respect to the status of tr particularly the grammatical lexical opposition in general tr seems to be a borderline case between grammar and the lexicon and a heterogeneous category in that it involves grammatical pragmatic and lexical construction types however the constructions in question meet highly specific criteria for their status as tr types and the process is productive and considerably regularized rule governed in mg in this sense tr should not be merely taken as a strategy for emphasis but should be systematically represented in grammar textbooks
