how can educators bridge the gap between big ideas about teaching students to think and educational practice this book addresses this question by a unique combination of theory field experience and elaborate educational research its basic idea is to look at science instruction with regard to two sets of explicit goals one set refers to teaching science concepts and the second set refers to teaching higher order thinking this book tells about how thinking can be taught not only in the rare and unique conditions that are so typical of affluent experimental educational projects but also in the less privileged but much more common conditions of educational practice that most schools have to endure it provides empirical evidence showing that students from all academic levels actually improve their thinking and their scientific knowledge following the thinking curricula and discusses specific means for teaching higher order thinking to students with low academic achievements the second part of the book addresses issues that pertain to teachers professional development and to their knowledge and beliefs regarding the teaching of higher order thinking this book is intended for a very large audience researchers including graduate students curricular designers practicing and pre service

modern literary study was founded on an opposition between the canon and its other popular culture the theory wars of the 1970s and the 1980s and in particular the advent of structuralist and post structuralist theory transformed this relationship with the death of literature the distinction between high and popular culture was no longer tenable and the field of inquiry shifted from literary into cultural studies anthony easthope argues that this new discipline must find a methodological consensus for its analysis of canonical and popular texts through a detailed criticism of competing theories british cultural studies new historicism cultural materialism he shows how this new study should and should not be done easthope s exploration of the problems possibilities and politics of this new discipline includes an original reassessment of the question of literary value by contrasting conrad s heart of this book suggests that religion in its usual sense can be replaced by something better that the human spirit or subjectivity can be the subject of scientific study and that lack of purpose or design in the universe is not a handicap but a positive opportunity for intelligent beings to ~~make of the universe and its contents what they~~ reasonably can the book breaks new ground in suggesting a radical alternative to religion it offers a scientific and humanist alternative to religion which appeals to people s critical faculties rather than emotions or intuitions it also challenges current views of causation and the principle of sufficient reason by stressing the subjectivity of our reasoning powers and clarifying these in relation to an independent external reality it develops and elaborates a notion of the noosphere within a theoretical system this enables the notion to assume a scientific importance which it currently lacks because it is treated as an isolated eccentric and rather mystical idea in the eighteenth century literature meant learned writings by the twentieth century literature had come to be identified with imaginative aesthetically significant works and academic literary studies had developed special protocols for interpreting and valuing literary texts literature in the making examines what happened in between how literature came to be more precisely specified and valued how it was organized into genres canons and national traditions and how it modern literature the version of literature it was forged when literary cultures traditions and publishing industries were mainly organized nationally literature in the making examines modern literature s coalescence and institutionalization in the united states considered as an instructive instance of a phenomenon that was going global since modern literature initially offered a way to formulate the value of legacy texts by authors such as homer cervantes and shakespeare however the development of literature and literary culture in the u s was fundamentally transnational literature in the making argues that shakespeare studies one of the richest tracts of nineteenth century u s literary culture was a key domain in which literature came to be valued both for fuelling modern projects and for safeguarding values and practices that modernity put at risk a foundational paradox that continues to shape literary studies and literary culture bringing together the histories of literature s competing conceptualizations its print infrastructure its changing status in higher education and its life in public culture during the long nineteenth century literature in the

this volume explores the development of literary culture in sixteenth century england as a whole and seeks to explain the relationship between the reformation and the literary renaissance of the elizabethan period its central theme is the common in its double sense of something shared and something base and it argues that making common the work of god is at the heart of the english reformation just as making common the literature of antiquity and of early modern europe is at the heart of the english renaissance its central question is why was the renaissance in england so late that question is addressed in terms of the relationship between humanism and protestantism and the tensions between democracy and the imagination which persist throughout the century part one establishes a social dimension for literary culture in the period by exploring the associations of commonwealth and related terms it addresses the role of greek in the period before and during the reformation in disturbing the old binary of elite latin and common english it also argues that the reformation principle of making common is coupled with a hostility towards fiction which has the effect of closing down the humanist renaissance of the earlier decades part two
