expressionism was exhibited abroad by the post war us establishment in an attempt to culturally match and reinforce its newfound economic and military dominance the account of abstract expressionism developed by the american critic clement greenberg is often identified as central to these efforts however this book rereads greenberg s account through theodor adorno and maurice merleau ponty in order to contend that greenberg s criticism in fact testifies to how abstract expressionism opposes the ends to which it was deployed with reference not only to the most famous artists of the movement but also female artists and artists of colour whom greenberg himself neglected such as joan mitchell and norman lewis it is argued that far from reinforcing the capitalist status quo abstract expressionism engages corporeal and affective elements of experience dismissed or delegitimated by capitalism and promises a world that would do justice to them

Rereading Abstract Expressionism, Clement Greenberg and the Cold War 2021-09-23 the author examines the culture of the united states in the post world war ii era with its air raid drills spy trials anti communist activity and tv quiz show scandals
