how withdrawal distress and cravings can haunt current and former addicts and what they can teach us about addiction and its treatments the dead drug leaves a ghost behind at certain hours it haunts the house jean cocteau once wrote in the ghost in the addict shepard siegel offers a pavlovian analysis of drug use chronic drug use he explains conditions users to have an anticipatory homeostatic correction which protects the addict from overdose this drug preparatory response elicited by drug paired cues is often mislabeled a withdrawal response the withdrawal response however is not due to the baneful effects of previous drug administrations rather it is due to the body's preparation for the next drug administration a preparatory response that can haunt addicts like a ghost long after they have conquered their usage examining the failure of legislation the circumstances of overdose and the cues that promote drug use siegel seeks to counter the widespread belief that addiction is evidence of a pathology instead he proposes that the addict has an adaptive learned response to the physiological changes wrought by drug use it is only through understanding so called withdrawal symptoms as a pavlovian response he explains that we can begin to understand why addicts experience cravings long after their last drug use
