Burning the Days 2013-03-28 in cotton county the first of the dual memoirs in the land and the days acclaimed author tracy daugherty describes the forces that shape us the rituals of our regions and the family and friends who animate our lives and memories combining reminiscence history and meditation daugherty retraces his childhood in texas and oklahoma where he first encountered the realities of politics race and class as a child in the early 1960s daugherty lived with his parents and sister in west texas and yet from a young age in the author s recounting he was just as much at home in the small town of walters oklahoma where his grandparents lived and where he and his family often visited a cattle and oil town

just a few miles north of the red river walters seemingly belonged to another realm in sensory detail daugherty evokes the old fashioned atmosphere of his grandparents home the tastes smells and textures fried okra mothballs cotton batting radiators and ancient typewriters these were things he explains that he experienced only in oklahoma the unearthly archives the second of daugherty s memoirs expands the realistic accounts of the first narrative providing a meditation on the meaning of grief daugherty demonstrates his curiosity and indefatigable quest for understanding and closure by examining his life long store of literary readings as well as the music he loves to discover the true value of a life dedicated to art whereas the first narrative explores daily family life setting up what will be the huge loss of his parents the second examines questions of death grief creativity and the meaning of memory as he mourns the loss of his parents daugherty reckons with his own mortality and finds himself confronting such fundamental questions as how does individual consciousness develop what can music art and literature teach us about life s experiences and finally is there a soul the land and the days addresses these eternal questions with uncommon honesty and grace
