we are living in the age of the anthropocene in which human activities are recognized for effecting potentially catastrophic environmental change in this book joel alden schlosser argues that our current state of affairs calls for a creative political response and he finds inspiration in an unexpected source the ancient writings of the greek historian herodotus focusing on the histories written in the fifth century bce schlosser identifies a cluster of concepts that allow us to better grasp the dynamic complexity of a world in flux schlosser shows that the histories which chronicle the interactions among the greek city states and their neighbors that culminated in the persian wars illuminate a telling paradox at those times when humans appear capable of exerting more influence than ever before they must also assert collective agency to avoid their own downfall here success depends on nomoi or the culture customs and laws that organize human communities and make them adaptable through cooperation nomoi arise through sustained contact between humans and their surroundings and function best when practiced willingly and with the support of strong commitments to the equality of all participants thus nomoi are the very substance of political agency and ultimately the key to freedom and ecological survival because they guide communities to work together to respond to challenges an ingenious contribution to political theory political philosophy and ecology herodotus in the anthropocene reminds us that the best perspective on the present can often be gained through the lens of the past
