Milk and Dairy Products as Functional Foods 2014-04-09

there continues to be strong interest within the food industry in developing new products which offer functional health benefits to the consumer the premium prices that can be charged make these added value products lucrative for manufacturers and they are also commercially popular dairy foods are central to this sector they are good delivery systems for functional foods yoghurts milk drinks spreads and are also rich in compounds which can be extracted and used as functional ingredients in other food types milk and dairy products as functional foods draws together a wealth of information regarding the functional health benefits of milk and dairy products it examines the physiological role and the claimed health effects of dairy constituents such as proteins bioactive peptides conjugated linoleic acid cla omega 3 fatty acids vitamin d and calcium these constituents have been shown to be for example anticarcinogenic anti inflammatory antihypertensive hypocholesterolemic immune modulating and antimicrobial this book examines the evidence for these claims and investigates practical approaches for utilising these attributes the book is aimed at dairy scientists and technologists in industry and academia general food scientists and technologists microbiologists and nutritionists together with all those involved in the formulation and production of functional food products

plasmodesmata pd are plant specific intercellular nanopores defined by specialised domains of the plasma membrane pm and the endoplasmic reticulum er both of which contain unique proteins and probably different lipid compositions than the surrounding bulk membranes the pd membranes form concentric tubules with a minimal outer diameter of only 50 nm and the central er strand constricted to 10 15 nm representing one of the narrowest stable membrane tubules in nature this unique membrane architecture poses many biophysical structural and functional questions pm continuity across pd raises the question as to how a locally confined membrane site is established and maintained at pd there is increasing evidence that the pm within pd may be enriched in membrane rafts or tet web domains lipid rafts often function as signalling platforms in line with the emerging view of pd as central players in plant defense responses lipid lipid immiscibility could also provide a mechanism for membrane sub compartmentalisation at pd intricate connections of the pm to the wall and the underlying cytoskeleton and er may anchor the specialised domains locally the er within pd is even more strongly modified its extreme curvature suggests that it is stabilised by densely packed proteins potentially members of the reticulon family that tubulate the cortical er the diameter of the constricted er within pd is similar to membrane stalks in dynamin mediated membrane fission during endocytosis and may need to be stabilised against spontaneous rupture the function of this extreme membrane constriction and the reasons why the er is connected between plant cells remain unknown whilst the technically challenging search for the protein components of pd is ongoing there has been significant recent progress in research on biological membranes that could benefit our understanding of pd function with this research topic we therefore aim to bring together researchers in the pd field and those in related areas such as membrane biophysics membrane composition and fluidity protein lipid interactions lateral membrane heterogeneity lipid rafts membrane curvature and membrane fusion fission we wish to address questions such as what mechanisms restrict lateral mobility of proteins and lipids along the pd membranes how can specific proteins be targeted to and turned over from membrane domains with restricted lateral access what elements lipids proteins membrane curvature packing order thickness etc may contribute to the identity of pd membranes how do the structural and functional features of pd compare to other er pm contact sites how is the high curvature of the pd er stabilised and what are possible functions of such a tightly constricted membrane tubule do pd need to be prevented from spontaneous collapse and sealing what technologies are available to address these questions that can underpin pd research we welcome interested individuals to contribute their expertise and develop new hypotheses on the particular biological and biophysical questions posed by pd we are particularly looking for articles original research articles technical advances and state of the art reviews that would expand on or challenge current perceptions of pd and stimulate discussion

State Formation After Civil War 2014-08-09

state formation after civil war offers a new model for studying the formation of the state in a national peace transition as an integrated national phenomenon current models of peacebuilding and state building limit that possibility reproducing a fragmented selective view of this complex reality placing too much emphasis on state building as design they place too little on understanding state formation as unplanned historical process the dominant focus on national institutions also ignores the role that cities and civic polities have played in constituting the modern state mining ideas from many disciplines and evidence from 19 peace processes including south africa the book argues that the starting point for building a systematic theory is to explain a distinct pattern to state formation that can be observed in practice despite their conflicts people in fragile societies bargain terms for peaceful coexistence they make attempts to constitute the right to rule as valid state authority in circumstances prone to conflict over which they have imperfect influence not control though the kind of institutions created will differ with context how rules for state authority are institutionalized follows a consistent basic pattern that pattern defines state formation in peace transitions as both a unified if contingent field of normative practice and an object of comparative study where the national centric models see local government as a matter belonging to policy on decentralization for later in the reconstruction phase the book uncovers a distinct local government dimension to peace transitions a civic dimension to national conflicts that must be explained incipient or proto local authorities that emerge even during civil war in peace making after state collapse the fact that it is common for peace agreements and constitutions to include rules for local authority for local elections to be held as part of broader democratization and for laws to be enacted to establish local government as part of peace compacts the book develops the concept of local peace transition to explain the distinctive constitutive role of this local dimension in peace making and state formation this path breaking book will be of compelling interest to practitioners scholars and students of comparative constitutional studies international law peace building and state building

this book advances an approach that combines the individual and the structural systemic dimensions of data protection it considers the right to data protection under the eu charter and its relationship to the secondary legislation furthermore the case law of the court of justice of the eu as well as current academic conceptualizations are analysed the author finds that current approaches invariably link data protection to privacy and often fail to address the structural implications of data processing he therefore suggests a dualistic approach to data protection in its individual dimension data protection aims to protect natural persons and their rights while the structural dimension protects the democratic society as a whole from the adverse effects of data processing using this approach the full potential of an independent right to data protection can be realized researchers practitioners and students will find this a valuable resource on the rationales scope and application of data protection felix bieker is legal
