Freedom and Fellowship in Religion 1907 excerpt from liturgica historica papers on the liturgy and religious life of the western church the antiquarian papers forming the second part of the volume were all originally printed in the downside review if these tiny vignettes do not of themselves commend themselves to the reader i have nothing further to advance in their favour they were included simply because i liked them as having given me occasion to write in my own natural style about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Religious Identity and the Invention of Tradition 2001 this collection of twenty papers originally contributed to the annual denton conferences in implicit religion bespeaks through the range and quality of its contents the achievement of its editor in gaining currency for the concept of implicit religion in a project spanning three decades as dr bailey immediately concedes the concept of implicit religion has been criticized for lacking analytical specificity transgressing appropriate boundaries and promoting an empirically over inclusive understanding of religion and spirituality this volume of denton papers in implicit religion makes absorbing reading and is a vital exploration of the idea of implicit religion and its relation to various themes in society edward bailey who edits this work is to be congratulated on his energy in promoting the concept and for stimulating conferences and research for the last quarter of a century and more in the late 1960 s he was beginning to sketch out his plans for research on implicit religion at much the same time as we at lancaster university were helping to reshape religious education towards a like concept within an overall framework of comparative studies and as an adjunct to expl
