after whom the modern constellations planets dwarf planets minor planets moons and chemical elements were named astronomers who have taken months or even years to decide on names for the heavenly bodies they discovered might surely be interested in seeing these pencil drawings which number over 1000 they can now put visual images to the names they have chosen the stars and planets are not only of interest to astronomers but to the whole of the human population of our earth astronomy can be popularized through art and the fascinating stories of gods goddesses legendary heroes and heroines this book also contains pencil sketches of ancient chinese heavenly bodies such as the 10 shang dynasty suns the seven luminaries the 28 lunar mansions the 9 northern dipper stars and the 6 southern dipper stars thus giving eastern and western perspectives of astronomy finally at the end of the book the five elements of ancient china are employed as suits in a chinese version of tarot using mahjong symbols and concepts from china s 13th century ma diao playing cards i commenced these drawings in the summer of 1984 85 attempting to depict some of the shakespearean characters after whom the moons of uranus were named it was in the 1980s while working in the university of sydney library that i had access to useful information on astronomy greco roman history and art a prerequisite for someone wanting to depict the mythical heroes after whom the constellations planets and their moons were mostly named at first i wrote about each of these hundreds of mythical or historical figures and then began drawing the 88 constellations in 2006 i drew the remainder of the moons of uranus which by then had grown to 27 and the moons of neptune followed it was only in 2010 after retiring and living in china that i completed drawings of the moons of jupiter saturn and the other planets followed by the ancient chinese planets and stars thus it has taken 30 years to complete this project which now incorporates a chinese version of tarot this book is also a visual representation of the measurement of time using chinese japanese and western traditions the 5 elements of ancient china combine with the sun and moon to give us the 7 days of the week anglo saxon and roman gods are depicted as representing the days of the week in the western calendar then the animals of the 28 chinese lunar mansions complete the lunar month while the 12 months of the year are represented by the monthly flowers on the japanese flower cards hanafuda the 12 earthly branches represented by 12 animals give us a 12 year period and when combined with the 10 heavenly stems they give us the 60 year cycle of the traditional chinese calendar then there are seasons and china s 24 solar terms into which the year is divided as well as the 12 signs of the western zodiac

Annals 1882

If we could ask a romantic reader of new poetry in 1820 to identify the most celebrated poet of the day after Byron, the chances are that he or she would reply with the name of Barry Cornwall, solicitor, dandy, and pugilist. Cornwall, pseudonym of Bryan Waller Procter (1787-1874), published his first poems in the Literary Gazette in late 1817. By February 1820, under the tutelage of Keats's mentor Leigh Hunt, Cornwall had produced three volumes of verse. Marcian Colonna sold 700 copies in a single morning, a figure exceeding Keats's lifetime sales. Hazlitt's suppressed anthology Select British Poets (1824) allocated Cornwall nine pages, the same number as Keats, and more than Southey, Lamb, or Shelley. Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine pronounced Cornwall a poet of originality and genius, and in 1821 Gold's London Magazine announced that in terms of tenderness and delicacy, even Percy Shelley was surpassed very far indeed by Barry Cornwall. It is difficult to square cornwall s early nineteenth century popularity with his subsequent neglect in bright stars richard marggraf turley concentrates on cornwall s phenomenal success between 1817 and 1823 emphatically returning an important and unjustly neglected romantic author to critical focus marggraf turley explores cornwall s rivalry and at various junctures political camaraderie with fellow hunt protégé keats whose career exists in a fascinatingly mirrored relationship with his own trajectory into celebrity the book argues that cornwall helped to structure keats s experience as a poet but also explores the central question of how cornwall s racy and politically subversive poetry managed to establish a broad readership where keatss similarly indecorous publications met with review hostility and readerly indifference this is a book about seeing the ultimate mystery as represented by the figure of god it is not about religion per se although it makes reference to many of the great religious traditions of the world and their gods rather it is about the presence of the spiritual world and its inhabitants the author s aim is to attempt to answer the question how do we see god through engaging with the images created by a group of children from a number of different cultures and spiritual backgrounds through a two year period the author travelled the world interviewing more than 500 children asking them to draw a picture of god to act and speak as god and to tell a story about god this text is a documentation of that journey into the lives and spiritual beliefs of children throughout the book a broad selection of pictures and stories by the children is reproduced and paraphrased the author offers his own commentaries not as an analyst in a psychological sense or critic in a literary one but as a god seeker trusting in the power of the image to reveal meaning this unique book will be of primary interest to professionals in the field of psychology especially child and family therapists as well as art and drama therapy sociology and theology the book will also have appeal to parents and children who are looking for ways to understand their belief systems in relationship to others
