this book describes how one can use the scientific method to solve everyday problems including medical ailments health issues money management traveling shopping cooking household chores etc it illustrates how to exploit the information collected from our five senses how to solve problems when no information is available for the present problem situation how to increase our chances of success by redefining a problem and how to extrapolate our capabilities by seeing a relationship among heretofore unrelated concepts one should formulate a hypothesis as early as possible in order to have a sense of direction regarding which path to follow occasionally by making wild conjectures creative solutions can transpire however hypotheses need to be well tested through this way the scientific method can help readers solve problems in both familiar and unfamiliar situations containing real life examples of how various problems are solved for instance how some observant patients cure their own illnesses when medical experts have failed this book will train readers to observe what others may have missed and conceive what others may not have contemplated with practice they will be able to solve more problems than they could previously imagine in this second edition the authors have added some more theories which they hope can help in solving everyday problems at the same time they have updated the book by including quite a few examples which they think are interesting many patients with stroke head injuries or dementia suffer severe memory impairment and in many cases improvement may fail to occur this book first published in 1984 followed by this second edition in 1992 offers practical guidelines to the problems and is supported by a discussion of theory about memory systems and functioning it should enable therapists and psychologists to recognize understand assess and manage memory problems arising from injury accident or infection of the brain the authors are well known for their interest in memory and memory therapy topics covered in this text include the relationship between memory and practice assessment methods for improving memory
