the materials lab is a resource dedicated to in depth material investigation in design our circulating ever expanding library of material product samples and assemblies was founded in 2001 by supporting advanced and interdisciplinary material research development and fabrication the materials lab provides the knowledge skills and we are healthy materials lab a design research lab at parsons school of design we are dedicated to a world in which people s and environmental health is placed at the center of all design decisions home mit materials research laboratory energy harvesting conversion and storage we are surrounded by weak sources of energy including light electromagnetic waves even the glucose in our bodies this research thrust focuses on harvesting that energy storing it and converting it into usable power our areas of expertise includes petrography steels and high temperature refractory alloys metals and ceramics processing mechanical behavior of materials materials selection and evaluation single crystals nano structures microelectronic materials and processing and characterization of coatings and thin films to name a few hu who is the john f elliott professor of materials science and engineering says i m hoping this will be quickly implemented so we can benefit human society this is a good example of a technology coming from a lab innovation where it may actually make a very tangible impact on society which is of course very fulfilling university of texas austin school of architecture west mall building rm 3 102 p 512 232 5969 e materialslab austin utexas edumaterialslab austin utexas edu
