this book provides modern technical answers to the legal requirements of pseudonymisation as recommended by privacy legislation it covers topics such as modern regulatory frameworks for sharing and linking sensitive information concepts and algorithms for privacy preserving record linkage and their computational aspects practical considerations such as dealing with dirty and missing data as well as privacy risk and performance assessment measures existing techniques for privacy preserving record linkage are evaluated empirically and real world application examples that scale to population sizes are described the book also includes pointers to freely available software tools benchmark data sets and tools to generate synthetic data that can be used to test and evaluate linkage techniques this book consists of fourteen chapters grouped into four parts and two appendices the first part introduces the reader to the topic of linking sensitive data the second part covers methods and techniques to link such data the third part discusses aspects of practical importance and the fourth part provides an outlook of future challenges and open research problems relevant to linking sensitive databases the appendices provide pointers and describe freely available open source software systems that allow the linkage of sensitive data and provide further details about the evaluations presented a companion site at dmm.anu.edu.au/lsdbook2020 provides additional material and python programs used in the book this book is mainly written for applied scientists researchers and advanced practitioners in governments industry and universities who are concerned with developing implementing and deploying systems and tools to share sensitive information in administrative commercial or medical databases the book describes how linkage methods work and how to evaluate their performance it covers all the major concepts and methods and also discusses practical matters such as computational efficiency which are critical if the methods are to be used in practice and it does all this in a highly accessible way david j hand imperial college london
