This book examines some of the mechanisms which are currently conceived as affording individual security. The idea of security includes emotional and financial components. These interconnect so that such common concepts as trust in someone and care-taking include both ideas of emotional and financial support. State policies on security rest on perceptions of two other institutions: the family and insurance both of which are subject to change at one time the extended family was seen as a major security providing institution but the contemporary nuclear family is more fragile the concept of insurance originally entailed ideas of community and mutual aid however the institution has developed in its modern private form as a profit driven entity this book addresses various uses of state power in providing security for individuals and outlines different ways in which this can be done this book is a philosophical critique of the economics of climate change from both an ethical and philosophy of economics perspective mitigating climate change is not so much a scientific problem but rather a political social and above all an economic problem a future without greenhouse gas emissions requires a radical transformation towards a sustainable low carbon economy and society how this transformation could be achieved raises numerous economic questions many of these questions remain untouched although economists are equipped with a suitable toolkit and expertise this book argues that economists have a social responsibility to carry out more research on how global warming could be stopped and that ultimately economic analysis of climate change must be a political economic approach that treats the economy as part of a wider social system this approach will be of interest to policy makers educators students and researchers in support of more pluralism in economic research and teaching the conflict between conservatives and liberals over public economic policy appears to have become a permanent feature of the american political landscape conservatives seek economic solutions with the market as virtually the sole organizing economic principle invoking individualism inspired by the declaration of independences right to the pursuit of happiness liberals look to an important economic role for a federal government established by the constitution to promote the general welfare in addition to the disagreement among the political class there is also no agreement among economists with no model reliably predicting the economic crises of recent decades under these circumstances the author believes individualism and the concern for the common good may only be reconciled through policies which promote equality of opportunity or as abraham lincoln expressed it equal privileges in the race of life with all its desirable human aspirations the reconciliation of individualism and the common good is developed through reviews of the meaning of liberty happiness and their economic implications the historical performance of the american economy is described in the context of the evolution of american federal government from one of limited economic scope supporting laissez faire capitalism to the current mixed government the more expansive role of government is described in terms of taxation policy and spending including concerns over the national debt and its significance with this background the general reader is invited to follow the authors path to a policy of equality of opportunity with specific proposals for an end to poverty assistance to children assistance to postsecondary education and training and commitments to social and medical security a specific taxation policy is proposed to fund these programs while maintaining a prudent and manageable national debt associated with these proposals are reforms to make the federal government more representative of the people
