□□□□□□□□□□□□□□□□ 1999-12-03 this volume features powerful essays by edward alexander on the phenomenon of anti zionism on the part of the jewish intelligentsia it also analyses the explosive growth of traditional anti semitism especially in europe among intellectuals and muslims alexander notes that anti zionism has established a presence even in israel where it frequently takes the form of intellectuals sympathizing with their country s enemies and perversely apologizing for their own existence alexander begins with an examination of the origins of jewish self hatred in nineteenth century europe he then explores the mindset of disaffected jews in reacting or failing to react to the two events that shape modern jewry the holocaust and the founding of the state of israel the book concludes with a focus on contemporary anti zionism including three essays about the role played by jews in the boycott divestment and sanctions movement to expel israel from the family of nations a final essay addresses the need for american jews to decide whether they are going to judge judaism by the standards of the new york times or the new york times by the standards of judaism

Adult Learners, Adult Education And The Community 1984-06-01 does gender make a difference to the way the judiciary works and should work or is gender blindness a built in prerequisite of judicial objectivity if gender does make a difference how might this be defined these are the key questions posed in this collection of essays by some 30 authors from the following countries argentina cambodia canada england france germany india israel italy ivory coast japan kenya the netherlands the philippines south africa switzerland syria and the united states the contributions draw on various theoretical approaches including gender feminist and sociological theories the book's pressing topicality is underlined by the fact that well into the modern era male opposition to women's admission to and progress within the judicial profession has been largely based on the argument that their very gender programmes women to show empathy partiality and gendered prejudice in short essential qualities running directly counter to the need for judicial objectivity it took until the last century for women to begin to break down such seemingly insurmountable barriers and even now there are a number of countries where even this first step is still waiting to happen in all of them there remains a more or less pronounced glass ceiling to women's judicial careers

2016-04-20 exploring the complex arena of international planning for development has until now been uniquely the privilege of influential senior western planners this book calls into question many of their hallowed principles and much of the conventional wisdom still evident in the halls of academe at a time of increasing enrollment of foreign students in north american planning programs the emergence of a new voice has coincided with a growing skepticism worldwide about old notions of planning and development in poorer and ex colonial countries now there is a need for brave innovations to reshape our understanding of the global crisis and the potential for progressive and democratic local solutions in both rich and poor nations alike this new voice is given expression by academics and professionals from third world nations who received their planning education in the west and who now hold posts in major western planning schools breaking the boundaries presents their views and those of concerned colleagues about the need for a radically changed curriculum based on a comparative one world approach to planning education their personal experiences as young expatriate scholars and later as teachers of both third world and first world students in western planning schools are seen as crucial to this need for change through candid reflections and perceptive critiques of their own field the spatial environmental social design and communications disciplines the contributors explore crucial issues in development planning from theoretical and professional practice perspectives

Building the Old Time Religion 2014 the ability to produce and understand referring expressions is basic to human language use and human cognition reference comprises the ability to think of and represent objects both real and imagined fictional to indicate to others which of these objects we are talking about and to determine what others are talking about when they use a nominal expression the articles in this volume are concerned with some of the central themes and challenges in research on reference within the cognitive sciences philosophy including philosophy of language and mind logic and formal semantics theoretical and computational linguistics and cognitive psychology the papers address four basic questions what is reference what is the appropriate analysis of different referring forms such as definite descriptions how is reference resolved and how do speaker writers select appropriate referring forms such as pronouns vs full noun phrases demonstrative vs personal pronouns and overt vs null zero pronominal forms some of the papers assume and build on existing theories such as centering theory and the givenness hierarchy framework others propose their own models of reference understanding or production the essays examine reference from a number of disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives informed by different research traditions and employing different methodologies while the contributors to the volume were primarily trained in one of the four represented disciplines computer science linguistics philosophy and psychology and use methodologies typical of that discipline each of them bridges more than one discipline in their methodology and or their approach
