THE CHRONICLES OF BARSETSHIRE (Complete Collection) 2023-11-20 the foundation of any archaeometallurgical study is study of excavated assemblages of metals and related remains this volume presents in detail how the metals and such remains as crucibles excavated from four sites in northeast thailand have been studied to understand the place of metal objects and technology in the ancient past of this region in addition to typological examination hundreds of technical analyses reveal the technological capabilities preferences and styles of metal artifact manufacturers in this part of thailand detailed examination of contexts of recovery of metal remains employing a life history approach indicates that metal objects in those societies were used primarily in daily life and only occasionally as grave goods the most surprising find is that casting of copper base artifacts to final form took place at all these village sites during the metal age period indicating a decentralized final production stage that may prove to be unusual for metal age societies these insights are made possible by applying the methods and theories introduced in the first volume of the suite of volumes that study the metal remains from Ban Chiang in regional context Thai Archaeology Monograph Series 2b University Museum Monograph 150

Ban Chiang, Northeast Thailand, Volume 2B 2019-01-24 this book opens up a dialogue between pre modern women identified as mystics in diverse locations from south asia to europe it considers how women from the disparate religious traditions of hinduism islam and christianity expressed devotion in parallel ways the argument is that women s mysticism demands to be compared not because of any essential female experience of the divine but because the parallel positions of marginalization that pre modern women experienced led them to deploy intimate encounters with the divine to speak publicly and claim authority the topics covered range from the sufi devotional tradition of sidis indians of african ancestry to the bhakti poet mīrābāī and the nuns of barking abbey collectively the chapters show how mysticism allowed premodern women to speak and act by unsettling traditional gender roles and expectations for religious behavior at the same time as uncovering connections the juxtaposition of women from different traditions serves to highlight distinctive features the book draws on a range of disciplinary expertise and will be of particular interest to scholars of medieval religion and theology as well as history and literary studies

Ornaments in India 1974 through an analysis of glass beads from four key study regions in britain the book aims to explore the role that this object played within the networks and relationships that constructed iron age society

The Routledge Handbook of the Senses in the Ancient Near East 2021-09-30 southeast asia is one of the most significant regions in the world for tracing human prehistory over a period of 2 million years migrations from the african homeland saw settlement by homo erectus and homo floresiensis anatomically modern humans reached southeast asia at least 60 000 years ago to establish a hunter gatherer tradition adapting as climatic change saw sea levels fluctuate by over 100 metres from about 2000 bc settlement was affected by successive innovations that took place to the north and west the first rice and millet farmers came by riverine and coastal routes to integrate with indigenous hunters a millennium later knowledge of bronze casting penetrated along similar pathways copper mines were identified and metals were exchanged over hundreds of kilometres as elites commanded access to this new material this bronze age ended with the rise of a maritime exchange network that circulated new ideas religions and artefacts with adjacent areas of present day india and china port cities were founded as knowledge of iron forging rapidly spread as did exotic ornaments fashioned from glass carnelian gold and silver in the mekong delta these developments led to an early transition into the state known as funan however the transition to early states in inland regions arose as a sharp decline in monsoon rains stimulated an agricultural revolution involving permanent ploughed rice fields these twin developments illuminate how the great early kingdoms of angkor champa and central thailand came to be a vital stage in understanding the roots of modern states Sharpe's London Journal 1849 this volume brings together a diversity of international scholars unified in the theme of expanding scientific knowledge about humanity's past in the asia pacific region the contents in total encompass a deep time range concerning the origins and dispersals of anatomically modern humans the lifestyles of pleistocene and early holocene palaeolithic hunter gatherers the emergence of neolithic farming communities and the development of iron age societies these core enduring issues continue to be explored throughout the vast region covered here accordingly with a richness of results as shown by the authors befitting of the grand scope of this volume the individual contributions articulate perspectives from multiple study areas and lines of evidence many of the chapters showcase new primary field data from archaeological sites in southeast asia equally important other chapters provide updated regional summaries of research in archaeology linguistics and human biology from east asia through to the western pacific
