UK Communication Strategies for Afghanistan, 2001-2014 2016-03-09 the war in afghanistan came to an end in 2014 after nearly thirteen years of conflict throughout that period british officials have described uk operations there in various conflicting and often contradictory ways as a counter terrorism mission a stabilisation mission and a counter narcotics mission respectively this book investigates how the war was sold to the british public and how britain s transnational foreign and defence policy impacted on the unfolding of uk strategy in afghanistan and the way it was communicated it argues that because the uk s foreign and defence policy is transnationally oriented meaning that it is foundationally aimed at maintaining alliance with the united states and the institutional coherence of nato uk strategy is contingent upon collective security and crucially is fundamentally concerned with the means of policy maintaining alliances over the ends using alliances to effect change explaining the inalienability of collective security systems to national security is no easy task however and when faced with the adversities of afghanistan the uk state has since 2008 instead opted to describe the significance of afghanistan in narrow nation centric counter terrorist concerns in order to maintain public support for collective security operations there whilst paradoxically framing the conflict in a manner that avoids talking about the transnational structure and purpose of the mission this kind of strategic communication is increasingly becoming a focus of the uk state as it faces a transnational dilemma of maintaining its collective security bonds whilst facing a public increasingly sceptical of liberal interventionism

Emerging Infectious Diseases 2016

2010-04-01 volume i a an outbreak of a respiratory disease first reported in wuhan china in december 2019 and the causative agent was discovered in january 2020 to be a novel betacoronavirus

of the same subgenus as SARS-CoV and named severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2). Coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) has rapidly disseminated worldwide with clinical manifestations ranging from mild respiratory symptoms to severe pneumonia and a fatality rate estimated around 2%. Person-to-person transmission is occurring both in the community and healthcare settings. The World Health Organization (WHO) has recently declared the COVID-19 epidemic a public health emergency of international concern. The ongoing outbreak presents many clinical and public health management challenges due to limited understanding of viral pathogenesis, risk factors for infection, natural history of disease, including clinical presentation and outcomes, prognostic factors for severe illness, period of infectivity, modes and extent of virus inter-human transmission, as well as effective preventive measures and public health response and containment interventions. There are no antiviral treatments nor vaccines available, but fast-track research and development efforts, including clinical therapeutic trials, are ongoing across the world. Managing this serious epidemic requires the appropriate deployment of limited human resources across all cadres of health care and public health staff, including clinical laboratory, managerial, and epidemiological data analysis and risk assessment experts. It presents challenges around public communication and messaging around risk, with the potential for misinformation and disinformation. Therefore, integrated operational research and intervention learning from experiences across different fields and settings should contribute towards better understanding and managing COVID-19. This research topic aims to highlight interdisciplinary research approaches deployed during the COVID-19 epidemic, addressing knowledge gaps and generating evidence for its improved management and control. It will incorporate critical, theoretically informed and empirically grounded original research contributions using diverse approaches: experimental, observational, and intervention studies; conceptual framing; expert opinions and reviews from across the world. The research topic proposes a multi-dimensional approach to improving the management of COVID-19 with scientific contributions from all areas of virology, immunology, clinical microbiology, epidemiology, therapeutics, communications, as well as infection prevention and public health risk assessment and management studies.

Pharming 2008-09-27: The expanded second edition of this key clinical reference provides the most up-to-date and comprehensive review of oncologic emergencies. It covers the diagnosis and management of the full range of emergencies caused directly by cancer and/or treatment, including chemotoxicity, radiotoxicity, and post-surgical complications, as well as transplant-related issues and toxicities of novel antineoplastic agents and the new immunotherapies. The book also shows how the entire spectrum of clinical medicine is brought to bear in the care of cancer patients in the unique setting of the emergency department, from health promotion and prevention to treatment and palliative care. Recognizing the multiple overlapping contexts in which emergency care of cancer patients occurs, the book addresses clinically crucial interdisciplinary topics such as the ethics of end-of-life cancer care, analgesic misuse and abuse, informatics, quality improvement, and more. Finally, perspectives on care system and social forces that shape end-of-life cancer care, such as cancer care disparities and care models, frame the book as a whole. Edited and written by world-renowned experts in emergency medicine and oncology, the second edition of Oncologic Emergency Medicine: Principles and Practice is the definitive resource for emergency physicians, oncologists, internists, family physicians, emergency nurses, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, and policy makers, as well as pre- and postgraduate trainees.

2023-01-25: This book provides an in-depth ethical analysis of the right to health care by contrasting privatized with socialized approaches. It pays special attention to how a socialized approach can be implemented in the context of limited resources and offers a way of integrating allocation decisions at the policy level with institutional and hands-on decision making. It also discusses how the right to health care translates into duties on part of the members of society. In an appendix, it suggests how, in time of need, the TRIPS agreement allows countries to side-step patent regulations that would otherwise raise the cost of patented healthcare products beyond what a particular society is able to afford the book is of interest not only to scholars but also to healthcare policy makers administrators and healthcare professionals as well as to patients themselves
