Alberta's Daycare Controversy 2011 this book analyzes the major influences shaping the canadian welfare state a central trend in canadian social security over most of the twentieth century has been a shift from a residual to an institutional concept the residual approach which dominated until the second world war posited that the causes of poverty and joblessness were to be found within individuals and were best remedied by personal initiative and reliance on the private market however the dramatic changes brought about by the great depression and the second world war resulted in the rise of an institutional approach to social security poverty and joblessness began to be viewed as the results of systemic failure and the public began to demand that governments take action to establish front rank institutions guaranteeing a level of protection against the common risks to livelihood thus the foundations of the canadian welfare state were established the emergence of social security in canada is both an important historical resource and an engrossing tale in its own right and it will be of great interest to anyone concerned about canadian social policy

International Reference Service 1941 alberta s oil sands represent a vast and untapped oil reserve that could reasonably supply all of canada s energy needs for the next 475 years with an estimated 300 billion barrels of recoverable oil at stake the quest to develop this natural resource has been undertaken by many powerful actors both nationally and internationally using research that integrates the economic political scientific and business factors that have been influential in discovering and developing the sands this book provides a comprehensive history of the oil sands project and a window on the nature of the complex relationships between industry government and transnational players this book is the first comprehensive volume that examines the origins and development of the oil sands industry over the last century

National Health Insurance Resource Book 1974 the goal of this research was to find out which automated enforcement programs have been successful and what contributed to their success as well as which programs have been unsuccessful and to draw lessons from their experiences this was accomplished through a comprehensive assessment of automated speed and red light running enforcement activity in the united states and canada which led to the development of guidelines to assist agencies in implementing and operating successful automated enforcement programs over 350 jurisdictions with current or past automated enforcement programs were contacted by survey and phone as part of the assessment in addition to the survey an extensive literature review was conducted to determine the effect of the programs cost effectiveness and resource requirements and to get the perspective of the public
