the study of high dimensional convex bodies from a geometric and analytic point of view with an emphasis on the dependence of various parameters on the dimension stands at the intersection of classical convex geometry and the local theory of banach spaces it is also closely linked to many other fields such as probability theory partial differential equations riemannian geometry harmonic analysis and combinatorics it is now understood that the convexity assumption forces most of the volume of a high dimensional convex body to be concentrated in some canonical way and the main question is whether under some natural normalization the answer to many fundamental questions should be independent of the dimension the aim of this book is to introduce a number of well known questions regarding the distribution of volume in high dimensional convex bodies which are exactly of this nature among them are the slicing problem the thin shell conjecture and the kannan lovász simonovits conjecture this book provides a self contained and up to date account of the progress that has been made in the last fifteen years a history of the chapter from its origins in antiquity to today why do books have chapters with this seemingly simple question nicholas dames embarks on a literary journey spanning two millennia revealing how an ancient editorial technique became a universally recognized component of narrative art and a means to register the sensation of time dames begins with the textual compilations of the roman world where chapters evolved as a tool to organize information he goes on to discuss the earliest divisional systems of the gospels and the segmentation of medieval romances describing how the chapter took on new purpose when applied to narrative texts and how narrative segmentation gave rise to a host of aesthetic techniques dames shares engaging and in depth readings of influential figures from sterne goethe tolstoy and dickens to george eliot machado de assis b s johnson agnès varda uwe johnson jennifer egan and lászló krasznahorkai he illuminates the sometimes tacit sometimes dramatic ways in which the chapter became a kind of reckoning with time and a quiet but persistent feature of modernity ranging from ancient tablets and scrolls to contemporary fiction and film the chapter provides a compelling elegantly written history of a familiar compositional mode that readers often take for granted and offers a new theory of how this versatile means of dividing narrative sculpts our experience of time
