the region of campania with its fertility and volcanic landscape exercised great influence over the roman cultural imagination a hub of activity outside the city of rome the bay of naples was a place of otium leisure and quiet repose and literary productivity and yet also a place of danger the looming vesuvius inspired both fear and awe in the region s inhabitants while the phlegraean fields evoked the story of the gigantomachy and sulphurous lakes invited entry to the underworld for flavian writers in particular campania became a locus for literary activity and geographical disaster when in 79 ce the eruption of the volcano annihilated a great expanse of the region burying under a mass of ash and lava the surrounding cities of pompeii herculaneum and stabiae in the aftermath of such tragedy the writers examined in this volume martial silius italicus statius and valerius flaccus continued to live work and write about campania which emerges from their work as an alluring region held in the balance of luxury and peril the refreshed insights into early imperial roman historiography this book offers are linked to a recent discovery in the spring of 2014 the binders of the archive of robert marichal were dusted off by the ERC funded project platinum ERC STG 2014 N 636983 in response to tiziano dorandi's recollections of a series of unpublished notes on latin texts on papyrus among these was an in progress edition of the latin rolls from herculaneum together with marichal's intuition that one of them had to be ascribed to a certain annaeus seneca platinum followed the unpublished intuition by robert marichal as one path of investigation in its own research and work working on the latin p herc 1067 led to confirm marichal's intuitions and to go beyond it p herc 1067 is the only extant direct witness to seneca the elder's historiae bringing a new and important chapter of latin literature arise out of a charred papyrus is significant the present volume is made up of two complementary sections each of which contains seven contributions they are in close dialogue with each other as looking at the same literary matter from several points of view yields undeniable advantages and represents an innovative and fruitful step in latin literary criticism these two sections express the two different but interlinked axes along which the contributions were developed on one side the focus is on the starting point of the debate namely the discovery of the papyrus roll transmitting the historiae of seneca the elder and how such a discovery can be integrated with prior knowledge about this historiographical work on the other side there is a broader view on early imperial roman historiography to which the new perspectives opened by the rediscovery of seneca the elder's historiae greatly contribute
