This volume has three foci: the rationale for considering how aspects of education can affect social cohesion; case studies that review particular country experiences with curricula and textbooks and practical guidelines and applications to help countries improve areas of education; complementizers may be defined as conjunctions that have the function of identifying clauses as complements. In recent years it has become increasingly clear that they have additional functions. Some of these functions are semantic in the sense that they represent conventional contributions to the meanings of the complements. The present book puts a focus on these semantic complementizer functions. This study broadens our knowledge of the important role of language in minority rights and in social and political struggles for LHRs. Exploring the interactions of linguistic diversity, biodiversity, the free market, and human rights, the contributors present case studies to highlight such issues as Kurdish satellite TV attempting to create a virtual state on the air through trying to achieve basic LHRs for Kurds in Turkey, the implementation of LHRs in the Baltic states, language rights activism in Canada, the spread of English as an international language, and the obstacles met in education by Roma and the deaf in Hungary. Because of lack of appropriate LHRs, language a right and a resource is a multi-disciplinary text which can be used in a variety of different areas of study in the legal profession, linguistics, cultural and political studies. Book jacket title summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc. All rights reserved. The book presents a timely examination on a range of issues present in the discussions on the integration of ethnic minorities in Central Eastern Europe: norm setting, equality promotion, multiculturalism, nation building, social cohesion, and ethnic diversity. It insightfully illustrates these debates by assessing them diachronically rather than cross-nationally from the legal, political, and anthropological perspective. The contributors unpack concepts related to minority integration, discuss progress in policy implementation, and scrutinize the outcomes of minority integration in seven countries from the region. The volume is divided into three sections taking a multi-variant perspective on minority integration and equality. The volume starts with an analysis of international organizations setting standards and promoting minority rights norms on ethnic diversity and equal treatment. The second and third sections address state policies that provide fora for minority groups to participate in policy making as well as the role of society and its various actors. Their development and enactment of integration concepts. The volume aims to assess the future of ethnic diversity and equality in societies across Central Eastern European states. Educational research and innovation are directed towards defining, implementing, and evaluating the principles guiding teaching and educational practices with the fundamental purpose of improvement. The chapters comprising this monographic volume constitute valuable contributions to this objective adopting an inter- and transdisciplinary perspective, a particularly sought-after aspect in the field of international educational studies. They address issues that transcend their curricular context, delve into broader frameworks, and contribute to addressing current educational challenges. Ultimately, this volume focuses on new curricular, methodological, and resource evaluation orientations and developments. It aims to provide responses that foster the development of critical and creative thinking skills, competency-based learning, informed decision making, and the promotion of quality teacher training. These perspectives draw from the most recent international scientific literature, solidifying their rigor and ensuring their scientific value. Offers an incredible array of learning products for every age level, including computers, art, and music, available as perceived icons of indifferent marginality. Disorder, indolence, and parasitism. Gypsies threatened the Bolsheviks' ideal of new Soviet men and women. The early Soviet state feared that its Roma population suffered from an extraordinary and potentially insurmountable cultural backwardness and sought to Sovietize Roma through a range of nation-building projects. Yet as Brigid O'Keefe shows in this book, Roma actively engaged with Bolshevik nationality policies, thereby assimilating Soviet culture, social customs, and economic relations. Roma proved the primary agents in the refashioning of so-called backwards gypsies into conscious Soviet citizens. New Soviet gypsies provides a unique history of Roma, an overwhelmingly understudied and misunderstood diasporic people, by focusing on their social and political lives in the early Soviet Union. O'Keefe illustrates how Roma mobilized and performed gypsiness as a means of advancing themselves socially, culturally, and economically as Soviet citizens. Exploring the intersection between nationality performance and self-fashioning, O'Keefe shows that Roma not only defy easy typecasting but also deserve study as agents of history. The COVID-19 pandemic has revealed the reality of life in all aspects of human endeavors. The education sector was not spared. The school system was uprooted and procedures had to be made quickly for the safety of students and faculty. As a result, educators struggled with keeping students engaged academically during online learning, and the stress of a health crisis on society. Preparing early childhood teachers for managing emergencies. Explores international and cross-cultural perspectives on teacher effectiveness in handling education and learning in emergency periods, as well as preparedness for post-COVID-19 experiences. This book identifies shares and explores the predominant theoretical and conceptual understandings of teacher preparedness toward emergencies and the aftermath, covering topics such as first aid measures, teacher effectiveness, and technology usage. This book is an essential resource for global K-12 educators, pre-service teachers, K-12 administrators, policymakers, researchers, and academicians. This report provides key insights into the social exclusion processes that affect Roma and Egyptian communities in Albania, two of the most vulnerable minority communities in Albania. It offers advice on the design of concrete actions to facilitate the inclusion of Roma and Egyptian communities into Albanian society and also includes feedback from the Roma and Egyptian communities on the study findings and recommendations. Roma and Egyptians in Albania includes supporting data collected via participatory methodologies conducted in eleven study sites to investigate the socio-economic, cultural, institutional, and historical situation of Roma and Egyptian communities across Albania.
