tracing the development of autonomous and automated shipping from a hype of unmanned ships to a more realistic use of automation to augment humans in maritime operations this book shows why human factors and human centred design are essential to the endeavour themes addressed in the book include technology and cybersecurity regulation and classification and competence and skills it combines commentary and insight from experts across the industry as well as academia and describes a roller coaster ride from conceptual idea via a period of hype where technologists and engineers enthusiastically advocated a rapid development as many others in the maritime industry felt compelled but struggled to follow and finally to a more measured view as cumulative experience started to show the limitations risks and the lack of a generic business case this book is intended for anyone working in researching in or simply interested in shipping and the maritime domain and the evolution of autonomous shipping the target audience includes regulators educators researchers engineers and manufacturers the open access version of this book available at taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a creative commons attribution non commercial no derivatives cc by nc nd 4.0 license
