iris murdoch produced twenty six novels in forty years the last of these jackson s dilemma was published in 1995 four years before her death murdoch s interest in moral problems inclined her towards what could be seen as an unusual view of human character and human life leading her to create bizarre situations and offer unsettling solutions which frequently challenge and intrigue the reader this essential introduction to one of britain s best known writers guides the reader through the full range of murdoch s fictional output tracing basic patterns which run throughout murdoch s work and showing how the novels help to elucidate one another the revised updated and expanded new edition takes into account certain details which have emerged following murdoch s death in 1999 incorporates the latest scholarship and offers fuller treatment of a number of novels the second edition also gives more weight to the development of the moral discourse which is predominant in murdoch s work from the mid sixties onwards murdoch was intensely concerned with the problems of good and evil in a godless world in the later novels particularly those of the eighties and nineties she posited the possibility of mystic personalities who influence others from a position beyond the normal parameters of our world hilda d spear examines these mystic and mysterious fictions in the later chapters of her study and argues that jackson s dilemma should be viewed as murdoch s unfinished novel the fictional scene in england immediately after the second world war makes an interesting reading many critical studies have in great depth investigated the historical processes to highlight the various directions the novelists moved in then at the same time there was a concurrent and a deliberate attempt on the part of these novelists to discard the heritage of modernism iris murdoch who is one of the most prominent novelists of this period also shared the distrust of her contemporaries for the so called literary radicalism however she remains distinct as a writer among her contemporaries in her awareness of the problems of the novel and language in her adherence both to the idealism about human potentiality and perfectibility that liberal humanism had contained but she is also conscious of the limited individual capacity to reach that ideal her creative career is marked by her desire to bring back to the novel some of its earlier comprehensive vision of life society and human character the present book attempts to reveal those important areas of murdoch s thought which set her apart from other novelists writing at that time her search for literary metaphors which aim at restoring to novel some of its lost moorings is a significant almost iconoclastic effort taking help from her non fictional treatises an attempt has been made in this book to highlight the platonic burden of her literary and aesthetic creed originally published in 1984 iris murdoch widely regarded as one of the major british novelists of her generation at the time was undoubtedly one of the most popular and prolific having published twenty one novels since 1954 she went on to write many more but the course of her fiction writing career was regarded with unease by some of her readers in that it seemed marked by an increasing conservatism of approach which could not have been foreseen in her earliest published fiction she was acknowledged as one of britain s leading moral philosophers and although this study is careful to respect the distinctive integrity of her fiction writing and her philosophy it none the less assumes her active presence in contemporary debate as one of the most powerful and original theorists of fiction writing at the time in this study richard todd systematically but discriminatingly surveys all her fiction to date and attempts to show how her fundamental theme the interplay between the roles of artist and saint is developed and expressed in her fiction the others examined by fiddes are mainly those with whom murdoch entered into explicit dialogue in her novels and philosophical writing including immanuel kant simone weil dietrich bonhoeffer rudolph bultmann paul tillich don cupitt donald mackinnon and jacques derrida this historic dialogue is however placed within a wider dialogue between literature and theology being conducted by the author and others are brought into relation with murdoch in order to illuminate this more extensive conversation notably the poet gerard manley hopkins and the feminist philosopher julia kristeva the book demonstrates that characteristic themes in murdoch s novels and philosophy the love of the good the death of the ego illusory consolations the death of god the modifying of the will by waiting the sublime and the beautiful and attention to other things and persons all take on a greater meaning when placed in the context of her life long conversation with theology the exploration of this context is deepened in this volume by reference to annotations and notes that murdoch made in a number of theological books in her personal library better worlds education art and utopia provides a fresh examination of utopia and education adopting an interdisciplinary approach and drawing on literature and the visual arts as well as traditional non fiction sources the authors explore utopia not as a model of social perfection but as the active imaginative building of better worlds utopian questions they argue lie at the heart of education and addressing such questions demands attention not just to matters of theoretical principle but to the particulars of everyday life and experience taking utopia seriously in educational thought also involves a consideration of that which is dystopian utopia this book suggests is not something that is fixed final or ever fully realized instead it must be constantly recreated and education as an ongoing process of reflection action and transformation has a central role to play in this process iris murdoch is a philosopher and novelist who has written a number of books on education and utopia. her work is often interdisciplinary, drawing on literature and the visual arts as well as traditional non-fiction sources. she explores utopia not as a model of social perfection, but as the active imaginative building of better worlds. utopian questions, she argues, lie at the heart of education, and addressing such questions demands attention not just to matters of theoretical principle, but to the particulars of everyday life and experience. taking utopia seriously in educational thought also involves a consideration of that which is dystopian. utopia, she suggests, is not something that is fixed, final, or ever fully realized; instead, it must be constantly recreated, and education as an ongoing process of reflection, action, and transformation has a central role to play in this process.
